MAJ. CLARKE HERE FROM VLADIVOSTOK, HOME BOUND

U. S. Officer Whose Car Was Searched, Passing Through

IS COMING BACK

Was Siberian Representative On Rail Board

Major E. M. Clarke who until lately as Vladivostok representative of the Inter-Allied Technical Railway Board in Siberia has lived in the diplomatic storm center at Vladivostok—the American officer whose car, person and entourage were searched by agents of the Merkuloff Government at the instigation, it is charged, of the high Japanese military command, has been a visitor in Shanghai for the past four days and is sailing today homebound on the steamer Golden State.

On the entire subject of the Siberian situation, the activities of the Merkuloff Government, those of the Japanese militarists, the recent moves of forces of the Far Eastern Republic and particularly concerning singular procedure ascribed to D. B. Macgowan, American Consul at Vladivostok—on all these subjects Major Clarke is completely silent.

He has been working for the American Government in Siberia for the past five years, in fact, since the American Railway Mission went into the country, and perhaps no other American is so well qualified as Major Clarke to tell exactly what the real conditions are in the north and say what they may become.

REFUSES TO TALK

When he was seen last night by a CHINA PRESS reporter, however, he courteously but decisively declined to be interviewed. It is known that he is going back to the United States on four months leave and, retaining his connection with the Inter-Allied Technical Board as a representative of the American State Department, he will return in the early summer to the post in which he was placed, virtually as American trustee for all the Allies in Siberia.

What really happened when Major Clarke became the outstanding figure of an important international incident was fully disclosed recently when the noted correspondent and authority on Far Eastern questions, Frederick McCormick, passed through Shanghai. And further disclosures of the manner in which Japan is fastening its grip on Siberia through the agency of the Merkuloff regime are being made in the series of articles by Mr. McCormick now appearing in THE CHINA PRESS and at the same time in American newspapers.

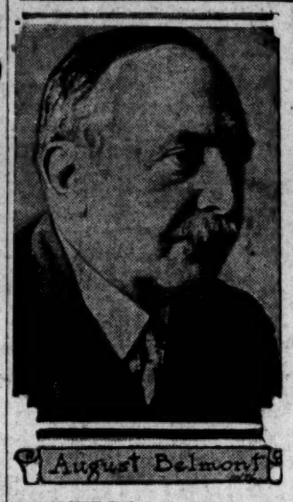
"DUMMY GOVERNMENT"

Mr. McCormick has called the Merkuloff regime a 'dummy government' set up by Tokio with the simple purpose of gaining monopolistic control in Siberia. The search of Major Clarke, his car and his attendants on October 23 last, Mr. McCormick asserts, was the outcome of a plot engineered by the Japanese military command and executed by agents of the Merkuloff Government—a lesser plot of a conspiracy built up in Tokio to defeat the aims of the Washington Conference.

All Mr. McCormick has been revealing is supported by a mass of documentary texts—originals, photographs and certified copies of the most secret and intimate correspondence exchanged by Merkuloff officials, the Japanese high command, the Tokio war ministry and even with the American Consul. And it is revealed also that the search of Major Clarke was carried out not only with the knowledge of the American Consul-General, but the affront was given in his presence, as he was on Major Clarke's car when the actual search took place.

Why leave has been granted to Major Clarke at precisely this juncture may only be conjected, but the possibility exists that he will go to the United States to present in person reports of affairs in Vladivostok that Mr. McCormick says he was barred from sending by American officials there.

Noted Financier Iniured In Fall From Horse



AUGUST Belmont, multi-millionaire traction financier and sportsman, is lying in bed at his home in New York as the result of injuries he received from a fall from his pony. Mr. Belmont, who is sixty-nine years old, fell from his mount while riding on his Winter estate in Hampton County, near Garnett, S. C. His injuries have been diagnosed as a strained left hip and right groin.

100 ADDITIONAL BIDS ISSUED TO WASHINGTON BALL

Arrangements Complete For Party Tomorrow Night

Final rehearsals of features of the George Washington ball to be given tomorrow night at The Town Hall are being held today and the work of putting in place the elaborate decorations in the auditorium of the hall which was begun yesterday will be pushed to completion in the course of the day.

It was announced yesterday that the limit of one thousand invitations for the ball had been passed, but in view of a large number of eleventh-hour applications it was decided to issue one hundred more. Those who desire to attend the ball and who have not yet presented applications may do so to Lieut. V. Olsen of the Municipal Electricity Department, 30 Fearon Road.

It is fairly assured now that this year's Washington Ball will surpass all others held in former years. The affair is to be staged in a gorgeous setting, peculiarly American as the scene disclosed in the hall will be that of a Colonial Home in which the house that George Washington lived in on the Potomac is to be reproduced and the illusion is to be heightened by means of intricate lighting effects.

As has been announced the music for the affair is to be supplied by several orchestras and that given with the historical pageant of dances will be of the various periods portrayed. For the general dancing many of the latest musical hits from the United States that never before have been played in Shanghai will be provided.

ARMY CHIEF IN INDIA IN PLEA FOR MORE MEN

Lord Rawlinson Explains Need To Journalists

(Reuter's Service)

Delhi, Feb. 19.—Field-Marshal Lord Rawlinson, in the course of a statement to English and Indian journalists here today, explained the necessity for stronger armies in India. He declared that the frontier tribes if combined could raise 130,000 splendid well-armed fighters and pointed out that the British troops in India and the Indian cavalry had already been reduced. The military had been called out 24 times this month to assist the police. India's contribution towards naval defense was only £100,000. He had done his utmost to reduce the expenditure of the Army, he concluded, but he declined to exceed the safety limit.

GOVERNMENT WILL OPPOSE BIG RAIL AND MINE UNION

Legal Action Sure To Follow If Two Unite

AWAITING 'BREAK'

Coal Workers Will Go Out April 1, They Say

(Trans-Pacific News Service Exclusive To The China Press)

Washington, Feb. 19.—The government will take no action with regard to the threatened mine strike, or the proposed alliance of mine and railroad workers until the plans of these organisations are definitely announced. No offer of mediation will be made until the unions make a definite "break."

The mine unions, through their officers, have announced their intention to strike on April 1, on which date their present agreement expires.

The Department of Justice may institute legal action if the meeting of the railroad and mine union officials next Tuesday results in the formation of an alliance with pledges of common action.

(China Press Service)

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 18.—The convention of United Mine Workers today voted overwhelmingly against accepting any wage reduction for soft coal miners under the new working agreements effective April 1. It is insisted that the present basis of wage scales must be maintained.

The convention ordered the suspension of work in all soft coal mines and will ask for a strike referendum unless a new wage agreement is negotiated before April 1.

The convention agreed to insert a six-hour day and a five day week into their proposals after rejecting a proposal for a six day week and seven or eight hours. It was unanimously decided to demand pay and a half for overtime and double pay for holiday work.

Fred Mooney, secretary of the West Virginia district, declared that a six hour day would be suicidal because of competition in non-union fields.

Australians To Raise Peanuts

(Reuter's Service)

Melbourne, Feb. 19.—A concern styled North Queensland Products Ltd. is subdividing 3,000 acres of land in the Cooktown district of North Queensland into unit plantations, which are being sold at £32 each. The Company intends to develop the peanut industry on the plantations for the various individual owners at a fixed cost, and to buy the entire crop. Substantial returns are promised investors.

RESERVATION TO 4 POWER TREATY NOW PROBABLE

Lodge Will Yield To Demand For Definition

SENATE TO ACT

All Pacts To Be Submitted Simultaneously

(Trans-Pacific News Service Exclusive To The China Press)

Washington, Feb. 19.—Senator Lodge has indicated that the administration has decided to yield to the demand for a reservation to the Four Power naval treaty specifically stating that nothing in the treaty shall be construed as a military alliance, or calling for the use of military force. This was announced after the Senate Foreign Relations committee had concluded a lengthy session.

It is understood that President Harding will not object to such a reservation, and that the committee will recommend it.

The debate on the treaty, it is now apparent, is following the lines of the controversy over the League of Nations pact, particularly on the reservations question. Senator Lodge has said that he does not think a reservation is necessary, but that he will consent to its inclusion if the Senate desires it, and if the other powers will agree. Senator Johnson, it is understood, is particularly insistent that such a reservation shall be written into the treaty.

It is said now that the Committee will report all the treaties at once, instead of the Quadruple pact first, because it is felt that whatever action is taken on this treaty will decide the fate of the others.

(China Press Service)

Washington, Feb. 18.—Despite pressure upon both democratic and republican leaders for prompt action upon the Treaties, controversies have developed in the foreign affairs committee which may create a long fight before the Treaties are brought to the floor of the Senate.

There is some comment predicting that efforts to obtain details of negotiations preceding the signing of the Treaties may cause long delays. However, the leaders of the administration are confident that the pacts will eventually be ratified.

Chinese Party In Australia Brand Parley Failure

(Reuter's Service)

Melbourne, Jan. 19.—Mr. W. Y. Lee, honorary general secretary of the Chinese Nationalist Party in Australasia, and a prominent Chinese Mason, declares that Chinese Nationalists are keenly disappointed at the results of the Washington Conference, so far as they affect China. China has reason for grave dissatisfaction, because she will have to fall back upon direct negotiation with Japan. Chinese nationals, he adds, particularly resent the fact that their country cannot borrow without the consent of Japan. It was hoped that the Washington Conference would remove the potential causes of future dissension, but these will remain if Japan retains a dominant position in China. For the sake of the peace of the world, the Great Powers should assist China to establish a stable Government.

Chinese Chambers Seek To Restrict Foreign Companies

The Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce has endorsed the suggestion of the Associated Chambers of Commerce to restrict the establishment of foreign firms in Chinese territory, according to the Republican Daily News. Sometime ago, the chambers petitioned the ministry to devise means of prohibiting foreign firms from establishing their godowns and offices in the interior.

The reply, which the chambers received Saturday, stated that a copy of the petition has been forwarded to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs together with request that negotiations to abolish these firms be undertaken immediately by the Civil Governors of the various provinces.

Spurned Duke, Divorces American

Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt.

SOCIETY in Washington was stirred when it became known that Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt, one-time belle of Washington and daughter of the late Senator Elkins, whose romance with the Duke of Abruzzi a decade ago kept the capital agog for several years, has obtained a divorce from William E. R. Hitt, son of Representative Hitt of Illinois. The Third Paris Chamber on June 20 last issued a decree which made the divorce effective sixty days later, when Hitt failed to enter a demurrer against the French verdict.

All Home Comforts In Peking's Fine Hoosegow

By Elsie McCormick

Most people would as soon think of looking for a model prison in China as they would for a chorus girl in the choir. According to accounts written by noted sinologues, an old-fashioned Chinese jail had no pooltables in the recreation-room, no newspaper known as "The Star of Hope," no base ball games with the State Institution for the Feeble-Minded across the river, nor any of the other little comforts that make jail-life so varied and informed for the government guests at home.

If a jailor of the Manchu regime ever heard of Thomas Mott Osborne, he concealed the knowledge with marvellous skill and duplicity. There were no instances on record of a vagrant wilfully overturning a chestnut stand so that he could be assured of accommodations in a steam-heated jail, or of a tattered camel-coolie addressing a Manchu belle as his baby-doll within hearing of a policeman, just to make sure of a week's leisure and no board-bill.

If a Chinese of even the lowest class was in jail, his friends could fairly assume that he got there involuntarily. One great advantage of the Chinese system was that there were no recidivists, because few people survived their first term.

In view of the fact that Chinese jails in the past were as little like high-grade penal institutions as New York's Mulberry street is like Palm Beach, the existence of a model prison in Peking strikes the visitor with new evidence of China's advancement.

PEKING'S HOOSEGOW

Except for some burnished quotations from Confucius hanging by the entrance, Peking's hoosegow bears small suggestion of its Chinese origin. We don't know what the quotations are, but we assume they say, "Don't kill the guard. He's only a poor fellow trying to get along," or maybe, "Take your time. There's lots of it."

The general plan of the prison consists of one-storied cell-blocks radiating starlike from a central guard-house. A watchman seated in a revolving chair can thus keep an eye on several corridors at once. Outside, the watch-towers equipped with searchlights resemble a flourishing penitentiary at home much more than they do a regulation yamen jail in China.

When we noted the modern exterior, we half-expected to meet a smartly uniformed warden with a star on his chest and a fondness for Navy Cut. We didn't. The warden of Peking's model prison is a pale, silk-clad gentleman with the long, tapering fingers of a member of the literati and a scar on his brow received, produced by one of his guests who for some reason was anxious to leave in a hurry. There was rather a serious jail-break a few years ago, but apparently the fugitives became annoyed at the rickshas or tripped over a camel or two, because most of them came back next day in time for their music lesson.

The model prison is clean, the buildings are well-heated, and the high piles of folded quilts on the cell beds indicate that the inmates don't spend much time worrying about the lack of hot water bottles. The cell windows covered merely with weak-looking wire-netting suggested to us that any resourceful foreign prisoner could decamp with the aid of three minutes' spare time and a button-hook. Apparently, however, Chinese prisoners with a proper appreciation of the high cost of living in the world outside find little temptation in an unbarred window.

Every immate of the model prison is required to learn a trade. There are nine different departments, including everything from printing to the art of scientific laundry. In one of the machine-shops we saw a pasty-faced prisoner in a padded gray uniform calmly sharpening a half-dozen butcher cleavers, while the warden smilingly looked on. The national trait of pacificism was rubbed more emphatically into our consciousness by this incident than by anything else we have seen in China. A warden who permitted a prisoner to handle such perilous weapons at home would either be discharged for incompetence or else be sent over to the family plot in installments.

FINE ART WORK

Some of the work done in the prison reaches a high standard of art. A stout kidnapper was painting delicate figures on silk, a bevy of highway robbers were embossing a gold-stamped document for the Department of Justice, and a number of second-story men were engaged in weaving intricate patterns into a screen of bamboo. Instead of handicapping a man after his discharge, a record of time served in the model prison is an actual help in securing him higher salary. It corresponds practically to a certificate of graduation from a high-class technical school. The Chinese ex-convict spends no time slinking past a policeman and wondering if there is a noticeable squeak in his jail shoes. A term in the penitentiary usually gives him a better industrial position than he could achieve before and is not considered a matter for apology.

Prisoners who show no special aptitude for learning a trade are

CHITA'S ARMY PUSHES MERKULOV'S FORCES 40 MILES NEARER THE SEA

Three Villages Taken, Along With Big Stores Of Clothing, Munitions And Railway Equipment, Including 9 Locomotives And 600 Cars; Reds Continue Pursuit Of Reactionaries; Habarovsk Arsenal Intact

(Dalta News Agency)

Peking, Feb. 20.— Dispatches from army headquarters report that the Chita army on Feb. 16 occupied the villages of Cherniaevo, Grodekovka and Verino Station situated sixty versts to the south of Habarovsk.

The White army abandoned large stores of foodstuffs, clothing, munitions, nine locomotives and 600 cars. The White army during its retreat had no time to destroy anything.

The arsenal at Habarovsk is intact. The Chita army continues its pursuit of the reactionary White army.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, Feb. 20.—The White headquarters are now stationed at Viazemskaia, to which the White troops withdrew in perfect order.

The total Red forces number 7,000. Their morale is low, especially that of the Chita Brigade which has to be driven on by rifle butts and machine guns. The Reds are badly supplied and exist only by forcible requisitions from the population.

The Whites are short of ammunition but their principal requirement is money, an ample supply of which would ensure their gradual absorption of territory and restoration of law and order, as the population is sympathetic and the Partisans could be bought.

The Japanese render no assistance in either munitions or money, but they even hinder operations by interfering with the movement of rolling-stock.

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Feb. 16.—The troops of the Far Eastern Republic have retaken Habarovsk and have advanced a considerable distance to the south of it, forcing the White troops to fall back.

The town itself was uninjured, the White troops finding themselves not strong enough to oppose the advance of the Chita forces fell back as far as Krasnovalichka, where they are said to be consolidating their position. The report of the fall of Habarovsk has been confirmed in Japanese circles.

It is believed that the Red forces will stop at Iman, where there is a thirty mile neutral zone, established by the agreement between Chita and the Merkuloff Government. It is possible however, if the successes continue, that the Chita troops will push on toward Vladivostok.

It is pointed out, however, that at the very best the advance must be very slow as not only is it winter now making travel difficult, but when the ground begins to thaw it will make the situation even more difficult because of the mud. In addition to this, there is only the single track-line of the Ussuri R. R. between Iman and Vladivostok, and the White army undoubtably will destroy this as it falls back.

MUCH MYSTERY IN MOVEMENTS OF SHIPS HERE

Liner Japan Known To Have Sailed; Russia Coming

While news reports received yesterday from the strike-bound port of Hongkong conveyed but meagre information the belief persists in shipping circles in Shanghai that the controversy of the seamen and cargo carriers which has almost paralysed commerce of the Crown Colony for more than a month soon will be adjusted.

Following on the unheralded and extraordinary voyage of the liner Empress of Japan to Shanghai comes a significant announcement that the Empress of Russia of the Canadian Pacific Steamships is to sail from Hongkong this week and is scheduled to leave Shanghai for Vancouver by way of Japanese ports next Saturday.

It now has been fairly established that, despite all lack of official announcement, the Empress of Japan did come to Shanghai on Saturday and sailed as mysteriously as it arrived, and well authenticated information has leaked out that before it vanished the Empress of Japan took aboard 488 Chinese workers recruited here for places left vacant by strikers. The Chinese workers that were taken out on the Empress of Japan, it is understood, will man the Empress of Russia before it sails for Shanghai, and some of them may be used on the Empress of Asia which sailed Sunday for Hongkong.

Representatives here of the Canadian Pacific Steamships continued to express ignorance of the voyage of the Empress of Japan to this port, saying no official notice of the ship's sailing had been received.

Both the Golden State of the Pacific Mail, bound for San Francisco by way of Japan and Honolulu and the Admiral Line steamer Keystone State, bound for Seattle by way of Japan arrived late yesterday from Hongkong.

Vessels of these lines have been hampered by the strike at Hongkong, but none has been seriously delayed, as the Admiral Line boats have all-American crews and the Pacific Mail boats are being manned by Filipinos. It is not known whether the Nile and the Nanking of the China Mail are still held at Hongkong. The Nanking was scheduled to leave Hongkong yesterday, but no advices concerning the ship's movements had been received yesterday in the Shanghai office of the line.

Aboard the Keystone State when it arrived yesterday some hours behind schedule was the big delegation of members of the order of the Mystic Shrine which recently visited Shanghai on tour of the Far East and is now homebound. A number of the party came up river last night and all the visitors will be informally entertained today by Shanghai Shriners. The Keystone State is to sail this afternoon.

The Admiral Line steamer Silver State with a full passenger list from Seattle and heavy consignments of mail and cargo is to arrive here this morning.

Telegrams received by shipping companies yesterday state that the Government of Hongkong is conferring with the Seamen's Union. The shortage of cargo coolies is causing great difficulty.

American Consul At Nagasaki Ends Life With Bullet

(Trans-Pacific News Service Exclusive To The China Press)

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 19.—The suicide of Raymond S. Curtice, American Consul at Nagasaki, Japan, who has been spending his vacation here, is believed to have been due to nervous break down caused by overwork. He was found dead in bed with a Japanese revolver in his hand.

Tension In Erin Further Relaxed

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 19.—The tension in Ireland has been further relaxed by the official news that the Viceroy has ordered the release of a party of Sinn Feiners whose arrest by the Ulsterites while allegedly proceeding to a football match at Londonderry has been the cause of such agitation in South Ireland. On the other hand, Mr. Collins has ordered the release of 18 more Ulsterites who had been kidnapped.

FUHTAN MOVES TO NEW CAMPUS AT KIANGWAN

New Spacious Buildings Are Completed And Occupied—Registration Heavy

A faculty meeting and student assembly were held at the new campus of Fuhtan University at Kiangwan on Saturday, preparatory to opening of the new semester yesterday. Three spacious buildings are now completed and occupied. The campus comprises a large area providing ample athletic grounds in addition to space and gardens for the dormitory and lecture halls.

The dormitory is entirely filled, the registration now totalling five hundred and fifty Chinese men. The buildings are of foreign architecture supporting picturesque roofs of Chinese style.

At Saturday's assembly President T. H. Lee addressed the student body. Greetings were also extended by faculty members and student representatives.

Immediately after adjournment from the auditorium, students gathered around the flagpole, from which floated a large Chinese National flag, and entertained the faculty with a volley of fireworks. Tea was served by President and Mrs. Lee.

BRITISH SEAMAN GAINS LIBERTY, LOSES HIS GUNS

Seaman Thomas Arnold of the Blue Funnel liner Agapenor, charged in the British Police Court yesterday with being drunk and incapable as well as with being in possession of two revolvers, was discharged with a caution by Magistrate King after his firearms had been ordered confiscated.

While admitting being drunk, the accused said he did not believe that he was incapable although he might have gone to sleep in the ricsha. His explanation about the revolvers was that he was going to deliver them to the British naval authorities. One of the revolvers he picked up on the battlefield in Bagdad while the other one, a Service revolver, was carried as Arabs in Bagdad had always been in the habit of raiding vessels in port.

Chinese Lawyer Wins Acquittal On Technical Charge

The case against T. L. Liang, a Chinese lawyer, charged in the Mixed Court before British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Kwan yesterday with defacing a document of the Chinese City Court, was dismissed. The accused was charged for initiating in pencil a summons issued against his father, who was a former compradore of Butterfield and Swire. Defendant explained that he did so when the document was served because he wished to acknowledge the service of the summons. He further declared that the Chinese Court officials had on several occasions attempted to serve the writ without observing the laws of the International Settlement.

In dismissing the charges Mr. Blackburn said there had been some friction between the Chinese and Mixed Courts in such matters and that all attorneys practicing in the Mixed Court must be careful in their dealings so as not to aggravate matters.

"Some respect is due documents issued by any court," Mr. Blackburn said, "and in view of the trouble we have had with our neighbors over the line nothing should be done to aggravate matters."

Noted Social Service Worker To Address Meeting Tomorrow

Mrs. J. S. Norvell, associated for twelve years with Judge Wilbur in Juvenile Court work in Los Angeles under whose auspices all social service work in the city and state were supervised, also lecturer for the Parent Teachers' Association of Southern California, will address a drawing room meeting at the home of Mrs. S. I. Woodbridge, 176 North Szechuen Road, tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. All ladies interested in social service and moral welfare work are cordially invited to attend.

EXCHEQUER BONDS

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 18.—The Bank of England has announced that the holders of 5 percent Exchequer Bonds, due on April 1, may, instead of redemption, receive allotments of the 3½ percent Conversion Loan at the rate of 136 for each £100 of the nominal Exchequer Bonds then payable.

WOMAN BRINGS SUITS AGAINST RUSSIAN LAWYER

A Russian lawyer named Nicolas Dugelsky residing at 41 Kiangse Road was named defendant in two claims filed by a Russian woman, Lidia Verigo, in the International Mixed Court yesterday. The claims were for $3,547.10 and $500 respectively.

In the first suit the woman, through her attorney Mr. J. Em. Lemiere, alleges that by a decision of the administrator of a certain estate Mr. Dugelsky was to pay her $3,547.10 which he has repeatedly refused to do. In addition she alleges that she holds his promissory note for $750 and that he has paid only $250 and refuses to pay the remainder.

Russian Assessor Ivanoff and Magistrate Tsang have already granted an injunction restraining Mr. Dugelsky from withdrawing funds from the American-Oriental Bank or the Russo-Asiatic Bank, or from receiving funds from the Russian Typographic on Boone Road, or The Russian Echo.

Money Exchangers To Discuss Losses On Light Coppers

Chinese money exchangers and tobacco merchants will organise at a meeting to be held on February 29 at the headquarters of the Dong Ka Loong Street Union, North Shansi Road. The question of relief from the losses suffered by them on account of the circulation of light weight coppers manufactured by Japanese will be brought up for discussion at the initial session.

A committee of eight has been appointed to prepare the constitution and present it to the meeting. The constituents of the new organisation will be tobacco merchants and money exchangers on Haining Road, Boone Road, North Honan Road, Purdon Road, North Shansi Road, Dong Ka Loong and Wuchang Road.

Dr. Hodgkin Talks On Averting Wars At Meeting Today

Dr. Henry Hodgkin, who is to speak today at 5:15 at Martyrs' Memorial Hall, 120 Szechuen Road on the subject "Can the Next War be Averted?" is a lecturer of international reputation, having made lecturing tours through England, Holland, China and Scandinavian countries. Dr. Hodgkin has lived in China before and his knowledge of the country enables him to speak with an understanding of the Chinese attitude toward war and international relationships generally. Rev. K. L. Pao, the pastor of the Peking Church of the London Mission will also speak. The public is invited.

Japanese Propose Second Conference In Japan Setting

The China Evening Post states that the Japanese Cabinet has decided to call a second conference on Far Eastern questions to take up matters left undecided at the recent Disarmament Conference. It is proposed to hold the parley in Tokio in November, 1923.

U. S. GOLD TO INDIA

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Feb. 18.—The Banks have arranged to ship $800,000 in gold bars to Bombay. This is the first consignment of gold that America has exported for months past. It is explained that the South African strike reduced the British supplies of ready gold to its lowest point and American bankers have stepped into the breach.

FEWER ADMIRALS

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 20.—In accordance with its policy of economy, the Admiralty in August proposes to reduce the number of Admirals allowed on the active list from 92 to 77. It is believed that this step will not affect the three Admirals of the Fleet, namely Lord Jellicoe, Lord Beatty and Lord Wemyss, who have been specially promoted for war services, and also four Rear-Admirals who have been seconded for service under Dominion and Foreign Governments.

U. S. Post Office Having Busy Day

One Mail Steamer Is Arriving With Big Consignment And Two Are Leaving

One heavy mail will be received and a big consignment will be dispatched today from the American Post Office. The incoming mail is arriving this morning on the Admiral Line Steamer Silver State from Seattle. It has 1,014 sacks of mail matter, 550 of which are for the American Post Office.

Outbound mails are to go on the Pacific Mail Steamer Golden State, bound for San Francisco by way of Honolulu, and the Admiral Line Steamer Keystone State, bound for Seattle. Mails to go on the Golden State will close today at the American Post Office at 12 o'clock noon for registered matter and at 1 o'clock for ordinary mail. Mail to go on the Keystone State will close this afternoon at 6 o'clock for registered matter and at 7 o'clock for ordinary mail.

Banque Bill Has Drastic Provisions

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 18.—M. Jeannerey's report recommending the adoption of the Banque Industrielle Bill, which was unanimously passed by the Senate Finance Committee lays down conditions for any acceptance of a definite project to refloat the Bank, including, according to the Matin, the energetic prosecution of the guilty parties; the payment of the uncalled part of the company's shares; drastic changes in the bank's directing staff both in the board and amongst high officials; the exact valuation of the Bank's liabilities; future State control of the Bank and the recovery of unpaid debts.

Several Senators have already intimated their intention to oppose the bill in the public debate on February 28.

Paris, Feb. 17.—The Senate Foreign Affairs Committee today heard Reporter Reynald on the Government's proposals for negotiations with China and a fresh allocation of the Boxer Indemnity.

M. Reynald said that China seemed to regard the co-operation of the Banque Industrielle as indispensable both for domestic and foreign operations, but it would be impossible today to create another similar establishment. He concluded by approving the Government proposal.

An Eminent Authority

on life insurance once described the policy contract of a "legal reserve" company, such as ours, in the following words:

"Plain business contracts which tell their whole story upon their face; which leave nothing to the imagination; borrow nothing from hope; require definite conditions, and make definite promises in dollars and cents."

Such a contract, backed by this Company's soundness and integrity, cannot fail to be a reliable source of constant protection to the policy-holder.

assigned to the gardening department. Twenty ching of land in the Southern Park are under cultivation by the prisoners, and many a man who used to raise chocks is now engaged in raising peonies. The fact that there are no trade unions to threaten the governor with the loss of the labor vote has made it possible to use prisoners in many forms of work that are barred to them at home. Carpenters and masons from the model prison built both the headquarters for the Board of Justice and the Supreme Court, both of which are among the notable foreign-style buildings in Peking.

Perhaps the most unique feature of the prison is the rule that every inmate must spend two hours a day studying music. This provision is along the line of the sages' idea that music is a potent factor for cultivating the soul and uplifting the morals. But imagine, if you can, Bill the Gunman at home laying down his mallet on the prison stonepile, looking at his wrist-watch, and exclaiming to his friends, "Why, bless me! If it ain't time for my zither lesson!"

It happened that our visit to the prison didn't coincide with the daily music period, which is just as well, for we fear that 642 jail-birds warbling and otherwise perpetrating Chinese melody wouldn't do much toward cultivating our soul, whatever it might accomplish for theirs.

In addition to the daily music lessons, the morals of the temporarily cloistered inmates are further improved by an ethical lecture from the warden after every meal. The same warden has been in charge since the prison opened in 1912, and we wonder that his supply of moral discourses has held out so long. He is aided and abetted once a week by a Buddhist monk of attested piety and frequently by missionaries to whom the warden, though not a Christian himself, has shown a decidedly friendly attitude.

When a prisoner wins an early discharge on account of good behavior, he has a coming-out party that would be the envy of many a debutante. With all his little playmates gathered together in the courtyard, the warden reads a long dissertation on Confucian lore and admonishes the almost ex-convict to keep away from the primrose path. Then the prisoner, if he wishes, addresses the assemblage himself, after which there is melody from the jail band. The honor shown an immate of good standing reminds us of the middle-aged tale about the East Side lady who announced that her son was to be released from prison that day, having secured a commutation on account of good behavior. "Did ye say?" remarked a neighbor admiringly. "Sure, now, that's a boy to be proud of."

There are numerous other features to jail life, including the four-hour a day school for prisoners under eighteen years of age and the thirty-minute drill in foreign gymnastics that takes place daily in the courtyard. In addition to being an accomplished musician, a Chinese turned out from Peking's model prison is an expert Swedish folk-dancer. He might also qualify as a mermaid, being required to take a bath every Sunday afternoon.

The entrance to the women's department is guarded by a husky lady warder with a wicked looking bulge at her biceps. The older women prisoners, said the mild-mannered warden with a sigh, cause more trouble than the whole 600 men. They are much given to hysteria, ear-biting, imprecation, and kicking heels in the air after the style of a spoiled two-year-old. We noted several ladies of mature age and doubtful respectability dressing up match-boxes, while in another department, rigidly separated from the others, a number of young girls were sewing patches on uniforms. Practically all the older women were sentenced for kidnapping, and the younger ones were in many cases their victims. The delicate creative work permitted many of the men prisoners is for some reason denied the women, which probably accounts for their greater discontent.

Being in jail in China has certain drawbacks, of course, one of the chiefest of which is that tea is served only on holidays. But then with a sermon to look forward to after every meal, morning folk-dancing in the court, and two hours of music every day, even the most blase prisoner can keep himself entertained until he is put out again into the cold, bleak world.

Bank Of Chosen's Governor Explains Bad Loan Reports

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Feb. 20.—Mr. Minobe, Governor of the Bank of Chosen, interviewed by Reuter's correspondent regarding the reports concerning the outstanding loans uncollectable amonting to 80,000,000 yen, said that the position of the bank did not differ from many others, which, during the extreme depression of the last twenty months, were obliged to extend the time for repayments on account of the embarrassment of the debtors.

Mr. Minobe was optimistic regarding the future of the institution and said that a majority of the loans were collectable with ordinary banker's caution.

"Astrology" Is Subject Of Talk By Dr. H. Chatley

Dr. H. Chatley yesterday in his farewell address to the Quest Society before going on home leave dealt with the subject "Astrology: "Is There Anything in It." He said that from the earliest period when the relation between the cycle of animal and vegetable life and the changing position of the sun had been consciously observed endeavors have been made to use astronomical observations for the purpose of prophesying earthly events.

At a comparatively remote period the tribal gods who had developed from the animistic superstitions of primitive man became identified with the heavenly bodies and thereby gained a more or less definite status. The sun for obvious reasons and the moon on account of its indirect value as a solar indicator were specially honored but the apparently erratic motions of the five visible planets also led to their being regarded as of great potency. From calendar reasons and by analogy with the planets the more noticeable of the fixed stars were invested with power. The speaker sketched the historical development of astrology in Egypt, Chaldea, China and India. He remarked on the solar religion of Egypt and the importance attached to the calendar stars there, the semi-scientific records of Chaldea, the meteorological and moral hypotheses of the ancient Chinese and the speculations of the Hindoos. As a schematic art astrology reached its zenith among the Greeks and Arabs, parallel with their improved astronomical observations, but the construction of a calendar was perhaps most advanced among the Chinese. This arose out of the greater regularity of the climate in China but the popular belief as to the extraordinary accuracy of the Chinese calendar is baseless.

The general principles of Greek astrology as practised among the Greeks, Arabs, Indians, mediaeval Europeans and even at the present time, were then described. The qualities of the seven planets, their "aspects" and the effects of celestial positions were also dealt with. The division of the celestial sphere into "houses" and the casting of horoscopes for the purpose of forecasting the fates of individuals, states, the course of special events and the weather was explained. The connection with the Hebrew Kabbalah and ceremonial magic, popular superstition and folk lore was indicated and the annihilating results of careful criticism upon the system were brought out. It appears that experience apart from the process of the fulfilment of prophecy by suggestion affords no basis for crediting the judicial astrology of the ancients.

The modern notions as to the influence of the heavenly bodies upon the earth were then considered. The almost negligible action of the moon upon weather and the question of the effects of sun spots were mentioned. The existence of weather cycles and the conceivable relations to the heavenly bodies was discussed. The speaker went on to talk of the dynamic effect of the planets upon the earth directly or indirectly by way of the sun and referred to the secular changes of the earth's orbit and of that of the moon. He showed how tremendously paramount was the sun's power, so that relatively small changes in the sun greatly exceed all other possible causes. While there is a small possible effect by spcial radiation from the moon planets and stars there is no sufficient evidence which warrants any very serious consideration of such causes, the speaker said.

The study of astronomy by revealing conditions of matter entirely different from those on earth provides a basis for a solution of the problem of alchemy and in the case of Mars and the moon may give a long forecast of the fate of the earth but the short period prophecies shat man really desires are entirely wanting up to the present time, Dr. Chatley stated in conclusion.

United Services Association Holds Its Annual Meeting

The question of becoming a branch of or of becoming affiliated with the British Legion will be taken up this year by the Committee of the United Services Association, it was decided yesterday at the organisation's annual meeting held in the afternoon at the Masonic Hall.

The matter was put to the meeting in the form of a resolution by Colonel R. Marr Johnson, the chairman, and was passed by a comfortable majority when put to the vote. The committee is merely to approach the national council of the Legion, which is an organisation covering all men who have served at any time in the British forces, and ascertain the terms of affiliation or inclusion. As the constitution of the Legion at present stands, Colonel Marr Johnson pointed out, it is not framed to suit ex-service men abroad, but it is believed that certain adjustments might be made.

In presenting the report and accounts for the year ended December 31, 1921, the chairman outlined the work done and spoke with gratification of the interest displayed and the ready helpfulness of officers and committee. The balance sheet at the end of the year shows an excess of assets over liabilities of $56,280.77. The excess of income over expenditures for the year was $6,809.54. The chairman spoke of generous donations received from the Race Club and the New Engineering Works and expressed the hope that the example would be followed by other firms and organisations.

During the year, Colonel Marr Johnson said, employment had been found for over thirty applicants and passages home to the extent of $969 had been given. The Association membership numbered 660, of whom about 60 are ladies.

Speaking of the observation of national holidays the chairman made the suggestion that on next Armistice Day—now known as the Day of Remembrance—the sale of poppies be undertaken, following the line of suggestion made by Lord Haig. He suggested that if the new committee fell in with the idea a sub-committee be appointed without delay to investigate the possibilities. The sale of the flowers of "Flanders fields" he believed would add considerably to the funds of the Association.

The matter of club rooms, the chairman stated, had been taken up by the committee during the year and was deemed not feasible, first because the organisation was primarily a charitable one and, secondly, because the town was already filled with clubs and it was believed that another one would be difficult to run and a drain on the organisation's funds.

Colonel Marr Johnson yesterday announced that he was withdrawing from the Association, with regret. His work with the organisation, he said, had been one of pleasure and one in which he took great pride, but he felt that he was in the nature of an anomaly, in that there was no precedent for a man on service belonging.

The following were named to constitute the committee for the present year: Messrs. J. C. Bosustow, A. S. Campbell, V. D. K. Craddock, J. Scott Finn, C. Houghton, E. H. McMichael, the Rev. W. Robbins, Dr. E. G. Gauntlett, Capt. J. Budgeon and Capt. J. West. An eleventh member will be selected by the above named as honorary secretary. It was mentioned by the chairman that Mr. Benbow Rowe had kindly offered to serve in this capacity.

The dinner proposed for Marshal Joffre was mentioned by the chairman, who stated that while the details had not yet been settled upon, owing to communications still being conducted with Peking by the French Consul-General, all members must notify their intention of attending not later than February 28. The dinner is to be given by the French veterans' organisation, who have invited the United Services Association to participate.

Before the close of the meeting a sincere tribute to the able work of Colonel Marr Johnson was given and the members joined effusively in a vote of thanks to him coupled with expressions of regret for his retirement.

Storm In Japan Takes Death Toll

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Feb. 18.—The heavy storm in North-eastern Japan which began on Thursday night did heavy damage to life and property in the districts around Taira in Fukushima. According to the police, 15 are killed, 37 missing and 217 houses destroyed. Over 100 houses were damaged and all the coal mines in the west of Taira have been flooded. Of the miners working here 75 are dead and 100 missing.

The embankment near Yumotomura has been broken and one village has been utterly flodded out, 130 people having been drowned.

Protectorate In Egypt Nears End

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 19.—Lord Allenby is about to return to communicate to the Sultan the Egyptian Agreement which, it is unofficially stated, provides for the abolition of the protectorate and the establishment of a Government entrusted with full responsibility, with safeguards for Imperial communications and the protection of foreigners.

There has been a series of anti-British revolver attacks in Cairo, resulting thus far in two deaths. Mr. Alfred Brown, Controller-General of the Ministry of Education, and an engineer, Mr. Michael Jordan, a New Zealander employed by a French firm, were killed. Two other British officials have been wounded but not seriously.

Egyptian self-government has been awaited for the past twelve months since the Egyptian deputation visited London and an agreement was made, the provisions of which were published at the time. In what manner the safety of foreigners and other duties to be assumed by the Egyptians will be guaranteed by the new agreement the cable of yesterday has failed to state.

Philippine Solons Want To Tote Guns

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Feb. 10.—Among the scores of bills rushed through the Philippine legislature during its closing hours was one authorising all senators and representatives to carry firearms. This proposal, which was voted down once before, was revived recently. It is said that the reason it passed this time is because a hot electoral campaign is looming up, and the legislators feel the need of taking precautions this session against aggrieved constituents.

It is doubtful, however, whether Governor General Wood will sign the bill. If he votoes it, it will have to be passed again by the legislature and sent to the President of the United States for approval.

NOTICE

THE General Public is hereby notified that supplies of "IXL" IODISED THROAT TABLETS, the remarkable new throat remedy that is now being so largely and successfully prescribed by physicians in Great Britain, are now being made available for residents in China.

Representing the latest advance in scientific throat medication, these tablets, by reason of their Iodine content, are indubitably superior to any other pastilles or tablets that have yet been evolved by scientific research.

Their use is positively indicated in all cases of Sore and Ulcerated Throat, Hoarseness, Quinsy, Throat Catarrh, Tonsilitis, Laryngitis, etc.

As a highly efficient throat disinfectant when epidemics are rife, IODISED THROAT TABLETS undoubtedly excel any other preparation yet put upon the market.

No malignant Diptheria, Influenza, or other germ can find lodgement on a membranous surface that has been subjected to the peculiar antiseptic influences of these tablets.

Pleasant to the palate, and allaying all irritation, each tablet, as it slowly dissolves in the mouth, releases, in harmonious combination with other fine quality medicaments, a specific quantity of the pure Tincture of Iodine, to soothe, heal, and sterilize the inflamed area.

WARNING:—All cartons of the genuine and original IODISED THROAT TABLETS bear the "IXL" trade-mark, and each tablet is embossed with the letter "A." Reject feeble substitutes.

All first-class chemists supply "IXL" IODISED THROAT TABLETS, but outport residents meeting with any difficulty in obtaining them are invited to communicate direct to the Distributing Agent, at 9A Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

S'HAI COLLEGE BIDS GODSPEED TO FACULTY PAIR

Well known in business and in sporting circles in Shanghai, where he will be much missed, Mr. E. Kelhofer of Shanghai College, goes home on a well earned furlough to America this week, sailing on the Golden State today.

The College faculty and their wives had a farewell party for the Kelhofers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mabee last Tuesday. Forty people were present, and expressed their sorrow at parting with these good friends. Members of the faculty who had known them the longest responded heartily to toasts on behalf of both Mr. and Mrs. Kelhofer. Doctor Huntley spoke of Mr. Kelhofer's willingness to serve and to help, wherever help was needed.

Mr. Kelhofer has earned the reputation of being an indefatigable worker along various lines. As an earnest teacher in several departments, as building contractor and business manager, as director of athletics, as coach of football, basketball, and tennis teams, he worked at everything with unflagging zeal, and was generally known to be able to bring things to pass. He succeeded in getting the championship for the Shanghai College tennis team last fall, and almost succeeded against great odds in getting the football championship as well, against such strong competitors as St. John's and Nanyang. Reckoned by percentages of games played and won or lost, Shanghai College did score the highest in the College football field last fall.

In many small matters of business and things needing to be done on the Campus, Kelhofer was the "George" of the community, to whom every one turned instinctively for help as the one who could give it.

During the proposal of the next toast the friends at the party were amused by advance copies of steamer letters, and even of wireless messages, purporting to be sent to Mr. Kelhofer after he is on the steamer by members of the college community, asking his help in important as well as in trivial matters.

A very wide circle of friends, both Chinese and foreign, in Shanghai and in many other parts of China, will greatly miss their friends and benefactors. The Kelhofers expect to return after a very short furlough, probably next January, when Mr. Kelhofer will resume his work as business manager of the College.

Filipino Mission To Visit America

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Feb. 8.—A joint resolution thanking Representative Rankin (Democrat) of the American Congress, for introducing a bill to give the Philippines complete independence within a year, has been introduced in the Philippine legislature and is expected to pass shortly.

Representative Rankin's proposal, according to press despatches from the United States, would guarantee the neutrality and independence of the islands.

Some of the radical Filipino politicians, inspired by Mr. Rankin's bill, have taken steps to draft a constitution for the Philippine republic. Their plan is to send this to Washington with the next Filipino mission to the United States. The date of the departure of this mission has not yet been fixed. Mr. Emilio Aguinaldo, the revolutionary veteran, is mentioned as a possible head of the mission. He is reported as being willing to accept the leadership but has thus far steadily refused to ally himself with either the Nacionalista party or the new party which is now in the formative stage.

A Judicious Inquiry

A well known traveling man who visits the drug trade, says he has often heard druggists ask a customer, who wished to buy a cough medicine, whether it was for a child or an adult and if for a child, they almost invariably recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The reason for this is that they know there is no danger from it and that it always cures. There is not the least danger in giving it and for colds, croup and whooping cough it is unsurpassed.

SUN'S ADHERENTS IN AUSTRALIA ASK RECOGNITION

"Only Legal Government," They Cable Three Capitals

(Reuter's Service)

Melbourne, Jan. 19.—One of the most important meetings for some time past interested the Chinese community of the Commonwealth during the recent Christmas and New Year holidays. During the week immediately succeeding Christmas Day the first Chinese Nationalist conference held in Melbourne was inaugurated in the presence of approximately 300 delegates. The previous convention was held in Sydney in April, 1919. The recent meetings were invested with greater interest in view of the presence in Melbourne of Mr. Chan Oo-yan, a special representative of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. Mr. Chan delivered a vigorous speech exhorting his fellow-countrymen to be patient and to do all in their power to help their leaders, who were now trying to crush militarism and despotic rule in China.

Among the subjects on the agenda was one relating to the present political situation in the Republic, and, after considerable debate, it was decided to despatch the following cable to the Governments of Great Britain, the United States and France: "This convention of Australian Chinese desires to point out that Dr. Sun Yet-sen is the legal President of China, inasmuch as he was elected by the members of the Chinese National Parliament, which represented the will of the people. We ask the Powers mentioned to accord him due recognition."

The Convention decided to establish day and night schools at each of the branches in Australia, in order to teach Chinese-born children in the Commonwealth the Chinese national life and ideals.

Opium Sent To Honan Province In Big Quantities

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 16.—The International Anti-Opium Association has circulated the following communication respecting the condition of opium and poppy cultivation in the Provinces of Honan and Anhui:

A letter from the Honan Famine Relief Committee states: "Cartloads of opium and other narcotics are coming into Honan almost daily from Anhui. Poppy is grown extensively in Anhui specially in the northern districts. I have travelled along the borders of Anhui and Honan and although there is no poppy on this (the Honan) side across the border I have seen considerable quantities."

It will be recalled that the Honan Branch of the International Anti-Opium Association suspended its operations in December, 1921, as a protest against official obstruction. The Tuchun and Civil Governor telegraphed to the International Anti-Opium Association, when the notice of the suspension of the Honan Branch had been published, asking why it had closed down, and giving an assurance that there would be a retrial of the case which had contributed to the suspension.

This assurance was accepted in good faith, but up to the present no official action has been taken. The Honan branch has performed splendid services in the past, but its work requires official support. Meanwhile the conditions in Honan are growing steadily worse.

817 Indictments For Oil Swindles

(China Press Service)

Washington, Feb . 19.—Secretary Daugherty of the Department of Justice stated today that the dockets of the Federal courts are swamped with stock swindling cases.

Four hundred and eighty separate cases now are up for trial and 817 persons have been indicted in connection therewith. Investors have lost more than $140,000,000 through fradulent operations of these swindlers who worked mostly in oil stocks.

Uproar In House Over Bonus Bill

(China Press Service)

Washington, Feb. 18.—The House of Representatives was thrown into an uproar today in connection with the discussion of the proposed soldiers' bonus measure, after Representative Garner (dem.) of Illinois, protested against the action of the republican members of the committee in calling representatives of the American Legion into a secret session from which the Democrats were excluded.

"It is an outrage," said Rep. Garner. "You have no right to hold secret sessions and invite the American Legion people to tell you the character of legislation they desire without admitting the democratic members."

Mrs. Gordon-West's Opinion of "Kirby's Sea-Sick Cure"

Park Lane,
February 4, 1912.

Messrs. COLLINS & ROSS,
154 Bermondsey St., London.

DEAR SIRS,

Until my last voyage to New York I dreaded sea travelling. Hitherto I had been so susceptible to sea-sickness that I could not leave my bed during the whole of the voyage. Even when travellin by train I have been obliged to lie down.

Before leaving for New York, I was persuaded to take "KIRBY'S SEA-SICK CURE" and was surprised to find that I not only avoided sea-sickness, but was entirely free from nausea of any kind. We had very rough seas during the greater part of the voyage, but I took all my meals in the saloon, and never felt better.

I shall never travel without the cure in future. You should make the remedy widely known, for it will be a boon to thousands.

Yours gratefully,

S'hai College Finish Out Season With Two Victories

Four Games Over Week-End Are Bringing Schedule To Close Ending

The Shanghai college basketball five finished out their Foreign League Schedule over the week end with wins over the "Y" and the Public School, finishing in the standings with a percentage of 523, ahead for the present of the Public School, yet at the last half of the first division of clubs.

The first game of the college was played Saturday with the "Y". The score was 45-42. Yesterday the college final was run off against the Public School with a win of 20-15. The college's two wins put them first out of the league schedule.

Saturday's game was not easily won by the college. The "Y" five led at half time by 29-21. The faculty five however crowded the youngsters for goals in the second half with the result that they nosed out by a narrow score.

Three games were played yesterday. The Bearcats took their sixteenth game over the Bowside 48-12; the Strokeside beat the American Trading Company 36-20, and the College won from the Public School 20-15.

FEW VETERANS OF N. Y. NINES SIGN FOR 1922

Three Giants Under Contract For Coming Season—No Yanks In Line

New York, January 9.—Following the announcement of their Spring training plans, with the dates of departure for the camps in Texas and Louisiana, John McGraw and Miller Huggins will begin within a few days the task of rounding up their players for the coming season. It is now only a matter of a few weeks before the managers of the two championship aggregations will be looking over rookies and veterans in either San Antonio or New Orleans, and each must first bring his players into line. Contracts probably will go out this week.

Only three or four Giants are signed for the coming season and, as far as is known the Yankees have no veterans under contract. Even Babe Ruth is among the unsigned, but there seems to be no worry about bringing the homerun king into the ranks. He has talked with Huggins and the Yankee owners within the last three weeks, and no doubt there has been something in the nature of an understanding regarding Babe's next contract.

Heinie Groh, Ross Young and Fred Toney have been announced by McGraw as under contract for next season, Young signed last season for a term of years, and the others came into the fold during the last week. These are the only veterans under contract, unless it is Frank Frisch. As far as is known, neither club has yet sent out contracts to its players, so Toney's signing causes some surprise. Groh's case was different, as he only recently became a member of the Giants, and he signed on the occasion of his first visit at local headquarters. Young was a hold-over.

Glenn Killinger, the Penn State athlete, is the only player whose contract has been announced by the Yankee owners. It is likely that both clubs will encounter some hold-outs in the ranks of the veterans, since that custom usually becomes a bit popular after a championship year.

Bolton Man Leads In Goals Scored

London, Jan. 7.—By scoring three goals against Oldham Athletic this week, Jack, inside right of Bolton Wanderers, jumped to the head of crack goal scorers in the First Division of League football.

Buchan, of Sunderland, who averaged a goal a match for the first 15 games, has only managed an extra notch in the succeeding seven games.

A feature of this season's goal scoring is the complete eclipse of Joe Smith, Bolton Wanderers' inside left, who last season equalled Freeman's record of 38 goals in one season. So far he has only managed eight in 20 games. Maybe the accident he sustained in the match against Aston Villa, the last match of last season, when he was all set to break the record, has taken some of the fire out of that deadly left foot.

Walker, of St. Mirren in the Scottish League, still sails along gaily having gathered 31 goals in 24 games.

South-paw Golfers, He Says, Are Succeeding In Spite Of Themselves

Golf, apparently, was never intended to be played left-handed. There are a few stout-hearted individuals who have refused to listen to the advice of their professional "to turn around and play the other way." Hence, we have "south paws" and always will have them.

Jock Hutchison

It has been figured out that about one in thirty play the game left-handed despite the fact they are the butt of many jokes. The attending handicap which goes with playing the game from the offside is usually high.

There are a great many lefthanded persons who do everything from the south side except play golf. These players probably took up the game very young when it was easy to make the change. Men who have been accustomed to athletics—baseball, tennis, cricket, handball and other games—and who have reached forty will find it almost impossible to make any progress at playing right-handed.

One of the rarest things in golf is to see a left-handed woman player, which goes to prove that playing the game from the south side is a habit that men acquire in sports. There are some feminine south paws, however.

What is the disadvantage of playing left-handed?

Why shouldn't a player be permitted to go ahead any old way he liked, so long as he conforms to the golf rules and swings a club in orthodox fashion?

This is a hard question to answer when put direct. I doubt whether any pro or low handicap amateur or any other student of the game could explain satisfactorily why a player can never attain perfection or win championships as a southpaw.

I can, however, explain some of the disadvantages and inconveniences of a left-handed player.

In the first place, golf courses are always made to suit the right hander. The average reader may not see any sense in this statement. They probably never realise that all golf courses are right handed. The traps and bunkers, the tees, the slope of the green and nearly everything connected with the game favors a right handed player.

In the second place a great disadvantage must come from obtaining suitable golf clubs. In baseball, tennis, cricket, hockey or polo a weapon may be used either right or left handed, but in golf it is totally different. Right handed clubs are no more use to a left handed man than a right shoe is to a left foot.

There are many right handed clubs on the market. Every pro's shop is full of them. Every big store handling golf supplies carries twenty times as many right as it does left handed weapons. So the left hander must be content with a small lot from which to make a selection, or he must have clubs made to order.

There seems to be some great difficulty in teaching a left hander, as it is hard for him to follow and to profit by instruction.

Outside of these disadvantages I see no reason why a left-hander shouldn't become a star. There are not many of them. I know of no left-handed pro, or star amateur player.

To return to the golf course argument, some may think that this makes little or no difference. Perhaps not to the finished player who is able to hook or slice a ball at will, but to the beginner or duffer it makes a vast difference. The duffer is prone to slice and a left-handed slice, a common fault of a southpaw, on nine out of ten golf courses leaves one in a peck of trouble.

The approach to the green favors a right-handed shot as a rule. Greens slope so that only certain kinds of shots hold. There should be no difference either way when it comes to the putt.

Golf, from every angle we care to look at it, is an exact science.

Cutler Gives Cue Champion A Scare

Albert Cutler

Albert G. Cutler, veteran billiardist, gave Champion Jake Schaefer a scare in their 300-point match at the Crescent Athletic Club, in Brooklyn. With Cutler an almost positive winner, young Jake came through with an exhibition of 18.2 balkline billiards that had the audience on its feet, winning the match with an unfinished run of thirty-five points. The final score was 300 to 292 for Schaefer, who is here shown demonstrating one of his favorite shots.

Only One Manager Signs In Big Leagues For Next Season

The Player Manager Is Just About Extinct In The National League

BY DANIEL

Many a year has passed in baseball since the approach of a new season found only one change among the men who guide the destinies of the sixteen major league combinations. Last winter, it will be recollected, there were quite a few changes. Evers went from a coaching job with the Giants back to the managership of the Cubs, while Fred Mitchell left the Chicago Nationals to take up the duties surrendered by George Stallings with the Braves. Donovan took charge of the Phillies in place of Cactus Cravath.

In the American League Lee Fohl was placed in command of the St. Louis club, while Jimmy Burke, who had piloted the Browns with more or less success and enjoyment, went to the Red Sox as assistant to Hughey Duffy. Duffy came from Toronto to fill the No. 10s vacated by Ed Barrow, who became business manager of the Yankees.

RECORD YEAR FOR CHANGES

Tyrus Cobb became player-manager of the Tigers, while Hughey Jennings went to the Giants as assistant to John McGraw, George McBride assumed the leadership of the Senators while Clark Griffith quit the bench and devoted himself to the business end of the club's affairs. That was truly a record year for changes among managers.

As we scan the list of leaders we find that in the National League the player-manager is practically extinct, Killefer being the lone survivor of that species. Killefer is not, strictly speaking, a player leader, either. Last season he worked in comparatively few games and showed an inclination to let O'Farrell do most of the work behind the bat. Managerial duties were new to the catcher and he felt that he could do his best as a leader if he let somebody else do the playing.

It may be that this year Killefer will reduce his catching activities even further. Wilhelm finished a few games in the box for the Phillies last year, but his flinging days are over and 1922 will see his retirement as a player.

EIGHT WERE CATCHERS

It is interesting to note that of the sixteen managers for 1922 no fewer than eight were catchers. One—Killefer—still is a backstop. The National League is full of catcher-managers. Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyns was a star catcher for the old Orioles, while Mitchell of the Braves caught for the Yankees, Braves and other clubs, George Gibson of the Pirates had a long honorable career behind the bat for the Pittsburghs before he became their commander, Branch Rickey of the Cardinals was a catcher with

The man who can place his ball on each shot by means of a slice or a hook or even by what some thing still more difficult keeping them straight without a kink either to the left or the right will never have to worry over the way a course is constructed. But these individuals or geniuses are few and far between.

CHOICE OF CLUB IMPORTANT

Referring again to golf clubs and the small choice of the left-hander, I want to impress upon my reader the fact that selecting a club is no small part of the game.

Nearly every golfer that I know of who has played the game very long has collected a great quantity of clubs of all sorts and description. The club he fancies in the beginning will hardly suit him after he advances in the game. He will find it too heavy, or perhaps too light, or it will not have the right lie, or balance.

Whether a club has an upright or a flat lie is of the utmost importance. It takes some time to develop the fact that one leans either way. Golfers do not form much of a style until they have been playing some time.

If you have an upright swing and you insist on using a club with a flat lie, you are all wrong. Why? Because you will be hitting the ball with the toe of the club. If you have a flat swing and use an upright club, the toe will never touch the ground.

The duffer is usually grossly insulted when told that he has a flat swing. He imagines it some terrible disgrace. Johnnie MacDermott was a flat swinger—one of the flatttest. So is J. H. Taylor, the British pro. The flat swing comes more around the body, and as a rule one using it is likely to hook. The hands hardly come above the shoulder in this case. Take hold of any golf club. If it lies flat on the ground when you address the ball, the chances are that it will suit you. If the toe of the club cocks up in the air, it is an upright lie, and you have a flat swing.

To get back to the left-hander, he is usually wild. I know of no more dangerous opponent, and one to recommend standing well behind of, when he is shooting. Otherwise wear a tin derby. A southpaw is awkward always.

Some people do everything left-handed but golf. Babe Ruth is one. He golfs from the right side of the ball.

My advice? Go to your pro, confess your shame, pin your ears back, use your patience, do what he tells you, and become a right-handed and a better golfer.

Only One Manager Signs In Big Leagues For Next Season

In the American League the former catchers are Connie Mack, who caught the delivery of Hank O'Day in Washington, we believe, and caught for several other clubs, and Lee Fohl, who was a catcher-coach with Cleveland not so many years ago.

Next to the catchers among the managers come the infielders—four of them. McGraw was third baseman for the old Baltimores and came to the Giants as a third sacker before he took the managership. He is the lone one time infielder among the National League managers. Wilhelm, as we have said, was a pitcher, and did his best work with the Brooklyns.

HUGGINS WAS 2ND BASEMAN

Huggins was second baseman of the Cardinals and Reds before he came to the Yankees as manager. He already had had managerial experience in St. Louis. Kid Gleason of the White Sox was shortstop of the old St. Louis and Baltimore clubs, and Peckinpaugh still is doing a bit of shortstopping. He started his major league career in Cleveland, then came to the Yankees, was transferred recently to the Red Sox and now finds himself with the Senators.

There are three outfielders among the leaders—all in the American League. Duffy of the Red Sox was a wonder with the Chicago and Boston Nationals, hitting for .438 with Boston in 1894. Cobb and Speaker still are at their work in the outfield—among the greatest in the game. Among the assistant managers the leader is Jennings, shortstop with Baltimore and Brooklyn. Huggin's assistant in chief is Charley O'Leary, who was an infielder with Detroit.

The dean of the managers is McGraw, who will start his twentieth season as leader of the Giants when he meets his charges at San Antonio on March 1. Connie Mack of the Athletics comes next in years of service with one club, with Gleason third and Robinson fourth.

Peckinpaugh will be not only the newest but the youngest manager. Roger is thirty-one, having been born in 1891 at Wooster, Ohio. Speaker is thirty-three, though he looks much older with gray streaks in his hair. Cobb is thirty-six, and so is Killefer. McGraw is forty-eight. Huggins is forty-two, and Robbie won't tell how old he is. McGraw says that the Brooklyn leader is older than he, while Robbie declares that "Mac" is at least five years his senior.

Peckinpaugh's progress in Washington will be watched with more than ordinary interest by the fans of New York. Peck became a prime favorite in this city and the fans here, no doubt, would like to see him make good to the extent of finishing second to Huggins. Peck, without question, has managerial potentialities. If he has a failing it is his apparent lack of aggressiveness. However, we imagine that when the tune comes for firmness Roger will be firm. He has taken command of a well behaved club and should experience no trouble in enforcing discipline.

While Peck made no move himself to gain the managership of the Yankees he was pushed constantly by a certain coterie among the players. The movement to land Peck in Huggins's place reached its zenith last summer when Huggins was taken ill and the shortstop became acting manager. The Yankees were in the West then, and they came out of a slump with a string of six straight.

OWNERS HAD TO ACT

From that time on the Peckinpaugh movement became a menace to the welfare of the Yankees. Huggins was opposed to trading Peck to the Red Sox but Cols. Ruppert and Huston saw the desirability of making a change. When they got the chance to acquire Scott they jumped at it and removed the storm center without impairing the playing strength of the club.

Peckinpaugh without doubt was disappointed when he learned that Huggins had been signed for another year. Though he made no move for the job it was only natural that Peck should have nursed the ambition. It was the second big disappointment of his career. Peck no doubt expected to be made manager of the Yankees in 1915.

After Frank Chance had resigned in so dramatic a manner in September, 1914, Peck was appointed acting manager. He did mighty well to the end of the season and his friends had an idea that he would get the job the following year. But he was turned down in favor of Wild Bill Donovan, who had been a star pitcher with the Tigers. Peck swallowed his disappointment and went into his work with greater vim.

PHILIPPINE BANK

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Feb. 10.—Investigation of the affairs of the Shanghai branch of the Philippine National Bank by a committee of the Philippine legislature has been dropped with the adjournment of the legislature. Indications are that it will not be re-opened.

The excuse offered by the committee for not completing the investigation is that the members were too busy during the legislative session to make a final report.

No matter how carefully worked out your interior decorative scheme may be, unless the lighting effects have been planned with equal care, the beauty and enjoyable living qualities of the room are greatly lessened.

Lighting specialists of today have solved the problem of properly diffused light, preventing eye strain, combining with this the use of artistic fixtures in such variety as to harmonize with any decorative effect.

We have a staff experienced in lighting installations of every type, residential, commercial and industrial. Our stock of fixtures and wiring material is complete and of the highest quality. Thus we are in a position to render a well rounded service—design, estimate and installation.

Conservatives Form New Political Party In Japan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Feb. 9.—A political movement which is still limited to only a few non-partisan but highly influential politicians is the plan of organising a new party with the Kokuminto as nucleus. Those who are in sympathy with the movement are said to include many of those who are thought to side with the Bureaucrats, and who are regarded as possible ministers of state at some future time.

The question of army limitation has become so popular that even the ministerialists have found themselves confronted with the necessity of action instead of remaining indifferent as is usual when the initiative is taken by any of the opposition.

The new party now being projected is likely to make this issue one of its most prominent planks, and in view of the fact that the Kokuminto is practically taking the lead in this issue, it is thought that the promoters are in a position to join hands with the Kokuminto.

The ultimate motive, however, in organising a new political party of sufficient power and magnitude to count in the political developments of the country must be sought not in the necessity of coping with any special situation like the limitation of land armaments, but in a desire that has long existed of preventing the predominance of any single party. This feeling has long been entertained by those politicians who are free of party affiliations and are generally classed as Bureaucrats.

The Japanese word which is translated Bureaucrats is Kanryo. But Kanryo are not exactly Bureaucrats as the word understood in English-spaking countries. Kanryo are those politicians who owe nothing to any of the political parties, but are men who have been in the service of the Government before any of the political parties began to count in national administration.

It is a group of this class of ex-government officials and their sympathisers who would organise a new party which they expect to be free from the traditions and usages of the existing parties.

When the late Prince Katsura organised his party known as the Rikken Doshikai which is the precursor of the present Kensoikai, there were many of the so-called Kanryo who joined the party, Viscount Kato and Baron Goto being the most prominent. But the Kenseikai, having failed to reach the expectations of those who hoped the party would be strong enough to form a Government whenever an opportunity should arrive, the need has long been felt for another party sufficiently powerful to stand in opposition to the Seiyukai, and in view of the fact that very popular issue is now to the fore in the form of army curtailment, the promoters are believed to be leaving no stone unturned in their efforts. But everything largely depends on the central figure. Another Katsura is wanted to facilitate the consummation of a new party, and the progress of the movement is considered worthy of the closest attention, seeing that Prince Yamagata, long regarded as the backbone of the Kanryo, is now removed from the scene.

Heir To British Throne Is Guest Of Indian Princes

(Reuter's Service)

Delhi, Feb. 19.—The banquet given by the ruling Princes to the Prince of Wales last night was one of the most remarkable scenes in the tour, pretty and rich in splendor. Of the 250 persons who sat down at least half were Maharajas, Kumars and Sardars, all in full durbar costumes of silks and jewels.

His Royal Highness sat between the Maharajas of Jodhpur and Gwalior. The latter, proposing the Prince's health, made an admirable speech in which he said that the houses of the Indian rulers and the Imperial House of Windsor had a perfect identity in aims and ideals since all wanted the endurance of the British Empire on the growth and solidarity of which depended the world's peace.

The Prince made a stirring response, expressing thanks for the splendid share the Indian Princes had borne towards the success of his tour and rejoicing in their sentiments of loyalty and strengthening of mutual trust. After dinner, the Prince chatted with the Begum of Bhopal, a very dainty little figure with her white boroa flowing from under her gold coronet.

This morning His Royal Highness attended a State parade on the Polo-ground. All the troops in the garrison were present, resulting in an impressive military display. The Viceroy and Lady Reading were present in the Royal pavilion. Afterwards, the Prince presented colors to the 16th Rajputs in the presence of enormous crowds, testifying to his popularity in Delhi.

Montreal, Feb. 19.—Reverend Father Abelard, a Roman Catholic priest, has been arrested and charged with the murder of his half-brother whose body was found with six bullet holes in the side.

Birth Control Leader's Trip To Japan Is Halted

(China Press Service)

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—Margaret Sanger, American birth control advocate, will not be permitted to go to Japan on the campaign of propaganda for smaller families which she had planned to launch in that country.

This was definitely settled today when the Japanese consulate here announced that it had received instructions from its home government in Tokio to refuse to vise passports for Mrs. Sanger.

The announcement was not unexpected by those familiar with conditions in Japan and the attitude of the Japanese government on repopulation.

(Reuter's Service)

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—The Japanese Consul-General has been ordered from Tokio to refuse to vise the passport of Mrs. Sanger, head of the American Birth Control League, who has planned a lecturing tour of Japan.

The order forbids her setting foot on Japanese territory.

Art Expert Lectures Before B. W. A. Meeting

The "at home" given yesterday afternoon at the Country Club by the Literary and Art Sections of the British Women's Association to the whole Association, members of the Country Club and members of the Literary Department of the American Women's Club was attended by several hundred. After a delightful tea had been served Mrs. Ronald Macleod, Honorary Chairman of the Arts Section, assisted by Mrs. Francis Ayscough received the guests in the ball room, the walls of which were hung with examples of Chinese art loaned by Mr. Strehlneek and Dr. Stafford Cox.

The speaker of the afternoon, Professor Osvald Siren, Ph. D., who holds the chair of History of Art in the University of Stockholm, was introduced by Mrs. Ayscough, who referred to him as a noted art critic of the West, but a great lover of the art of the Far East, who would interpret some of the essentials of art in his address on "The Principles of Representation in Chinese and European Art."

Dr. Siren declared at the outset of his talk that the way in which artists took the forms of the visible world and endowed them with significance, life and soul was a secret revealed only to the intimate friends of the great masters through long study and that he should not attempt to reveal that mystery, but would only discuss the means by which artists had expressed themselves.

ART AND ENVIRONMENT

"This expression," said the speaker, "is more or less a product of our natural environment, since we are all walled in by idiosyncrasies which we cherish as important assets. We make our own ideas of nature the standard of comparison and so impose our conventions upon the artist."

In comparing the representations of Chinese and Western art Dr. Siren said that one of the great differences was that Chinese artists disregarded linear perspective, not that they did not understand it, but that they did not rely upon it to produce the effect of illusion. The Eastern artist keeps constantly in mind his flat background and his work depends for its decorative unity upon the synthetic power of the rhythmic disign.

Another great difference between the methods of the two schools is that the anthropological attitude toward art had never been adopted by the Eastern artist. The beauty of the nude never appealed to the Chinese as the ideal, but by freeing himself of the tyranny of bodily limitations he left himself free to express the spiritual values underlying the objective. China's art medium—the firm brush strokes of India ink—is admirably adapted to the expression of atmospheric tone, and through it came rhythmic structure. "The ultimate aim of Chinese landscape painting," concluded Dr. Siren, "is infinity. His landscapes are no mere representations of nature in the sense commonly attributed to this term but are impressionistic renderings of the inner life of the soul."

DESCRIBES PICTURE

The speaker illustrated his lecture with many interesting lantern slides representing both Western and Eastern art and his descriptions were most felicitously phrased as in the instance of the picture by an artist of the Sung dynasty, Lu Hsin-chung, of a Lohan in meditation by a lotus tree, of which he says:

"He is sitting on a bench a little to one side of the picture turned half away from the spectator. On the other side grows a curving willow tree. Behind it a servant approaches with something on a tray. His humble bearing expresses hesitation—shall he venture to step forward and disturb the holy man who sits motionless in contemplation of the lotus flower's symbolic message? Only the tender foliage of the willow moves slightly in the evening breeze. Softly fall the folds of his embroidered silken mantle in lines complete repose. Tranquil and serene winds the long sweep of the curving trunk. But the leaves of the tree and the flowers of the pond still wave with the pulse of the dying wind.

"The tone is subdued, no strong accents break the flowing legato. No details stand out conspicuously to disturb the unity. It is more of a dream than a reality, though every object is clearly defined and the forms are delicately modeled in light and shade. But the gradations of tones are so distinct that at first glance one hardly realises that the figures are more than silhouettes. The decentralised and unsymmetrical mode of composition serves to endow the picture with something of the ceaseless motion and free growth of nature. The harmony does not seem to be the result of any formal scheme of intellectual cultivation: it sings naturally, softly, and irresistibly as an echo of the deep peace in the soul of the great man."

Few Youths Over 12 Get New Intelligence

Boys Brighter Than Girls, But More Go Crazy, Says An Expect

London, Jan. 14.—Boys are more intelligent than girls but the faminine sex provides fewer lunatics, according to Dr. R R. Rusk of St. Andrew's University in speaking at the London University College.

He declared that under the present educational system genius was sacrificed on the altar of average. He stated he had carried out intelligence tests with large numbers of American, German and Scottish children and had come to the conclusion that forty-five out of every hundred develop no fresh intelligence after they are twelve years old and that another twenty-four stopped developing after fourteen. He said he believed this 70 percent should be barred from secondary education altogether and that of the remaining thirty only 13 percent were capable of appreciating a university education and only 4 percent took honors.

First German Ship Since War Arrives

The Hamburg-America Line motor vessel Havelland arrived in Shanghai from Hamburg yesterday afternoon. This is the first German boat to arrive in Shanghai since the outbreak of the European War. The liner is of 10,235 tons displacement and brought 9 passengers, about 5,000 tons of general cargo and 47 sacks of mail from Hongkong. The next German ship to arrive is the Muensterland of the same line and is expected in about a month.

21 UNIONS HERE

Twenty-one labor and trade unions exist in Shanghai, according to a report carried by the Union Press Agency of Shanghai. The laborers who are organised include the Chinese druggists, the vegetable carriers, the engravers, the carpenters, the hot-water peddlers, masons, painters, printers, seamen, mechanics, electricians, godown coolies, wharf coolies, stocking mill hands, dyers, sack-makers and ricsha coolies.

Churchill Prepares To Paint In Heaven

London, Jan. 14.—While he is busily mixing various colors in his earthly endeavors, including those for his own canvases, Winston Churchill hopes for brighter ones on his "heavenly palette." Writing in the Strand Magazine on "Painting as a Pastime," the Colonial Secretary says: "I must say I like bright colors. When I get to heaven I mean to spend a considerable portion of my first million years in painting and so get to the bottom of the subject. But I shall require a still gayer palette than I get here below. I expect that orange and vermillion will be the darkest and dullest colors on it and beyond them will be a whole range of wonderful new colors which will delight the celestial eye."

Mr. Churchill is enthusiastic over his art and declares: "I know of nothing which without exhausting the body more entirely absorbs the mind. Whatever the worries of the hour or the threats of the future, once a picture has begun to flow, there is no room for them in the mental scale."

APARTMENTS TO LET

SPEAKIN' 'bout Boarding- houses. The chap who said: "People in Shanghai either lived in boardin'-houses, or ran them," didn't know "the half of it, dearie". Boarders just make me think of my hands and fingers, there is always some like my middle-finger, feelin' better than the rest, 'cause it's a little different; then the human-index-fingers, always pointin' out something and the human-little fingers, not very much use but to arch prettily, and cute enough to be called Pinkey; and that marriage-ring finger, but why speak of War? I used to wonder what Old Mother Goose meant about Mrs. and Mr. Jack Spratt and the fat question now I think I know; and little Bo-peep and her sheep, well as I don't serve Mutton-stew my folks don't have to wish I'd lose mine; and the way my dishes run away with my spoons, ain't no nursery rhyme, and if you had to pay my meat-bill you sure would think the cow jumped over the moon and forgot to come down again. But .... I can't get along very well without my hands and I guess Boarders (some of them, a few know different) are just as helpful so if there are two chaps who like clean food well-cooked; American-home cooking, pleasant surroundings, I have a vacancy at present. SZECHUEN FAMINE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 17.—A communication from Szechuan indicates that, as the result of hail storms and floods last summer, famine conditions prevail in many districts of that province. A report from foreign sources in Kweichow states that want is felt there also, a distressing feature of the situation being that owing to a relaxation of the opium regulations poppy is to some extent supplanting cereals as a field crop, the peasants in some cases pulling up rape and cereals to make room for it.

Spot and forward bar silver were each down 7/8d. in London on Saturday. The New York price declined to 64⅜ cents, and the London-New York cross rate improved to 437½. The official Sterling rate here this morning was dropped to 3-4, the Gold Dollar rate to 71, the Franc rate to 795, and the other rates in proportion.

The market at the opening was on the easy side, business in Sterling being done for February at 3-3¼, for March at 3-3 and for April at 3-2⅝. Gold Dollars at the opening were done at 71½ for February, 71¼ for March and 70¾ for April. There were, however, good buyers at these rates and, at the Tiffin interval, the best sellers of Sterling were offering 3-2⅞ for February, 3-2⅝ for March and 3-2⅜ for April.

The best sellers of Gold Dollars at that time were offering 71 for February, 70¾ for March and 70½ for April. In consequence of this weakness, the official Sterling rate in the afternoon was dropped to 3-2½, the Gold Dollar rate to 70, and the Yen rate raised to 68.

After the change in rates, the market became steady with speculators inclined to sell. At the close there were sellers of Sterling at 3-2⅞ for February, 3-2¾ for March and 3-2½ for April. There were sellers of Gold Dollars at the close at 71 for February, 70⅝ for March and 70¼ for April.

China sold silver in London on Saturday, and the market there is reported to have closed uncertain. The New York market is still nominal, with no buyers.

Financial Survey For January

The following survey of economic and financial conditions for the month of January has been compiled by the Chinese American Bank of Commerce, Shanghai branch:

TRADE

The fact that the Chinese New Year fell this time together with the closing days of January will readily have to be accepted as apology for the absence of trade activity. The advent of the Chinese New Year is synonymous with a final settlement of the past year's engagements, and as such liable to produce many surprises, often of an unpleasant nature. Taking into consideration that the year 1921 was highly unremunerative for many traders and positively disastrous for others, it is a point of gratification to be able to state that China has emerged fairly well from the "final reckoning" which the advent of the New Year demands.

We have had occasion to point out that economically China has suffered to a small extent only, when compared with what most of the foreign countries have had to endure in 1921. Quite recently a large concern in Chicago declared a net loss exceeding 30 millions of dollars for 1921, and a similar loss, is reported (£8,200,000) on behalf of a large English industrial concern.

EXCHANGES DYING

Nothing so sensational has happened in China, in spite of prophecies in connection with the establishment of about 140 Stock and Produce Exchanges at Shanghai alone. Many of these are dying a natural death, others have come to the conclusion that it is wiser to save what there is to be saved and to liquidate the remaining assets, while some of those exchanges have been doing very well indeed. In any case there were no sensational failures among stock exchanges nor in the business world at the occasion of the Chinese New Year settlement.

During January a fair business was done at Shanghai in paper. Regarding exports we notice that good quantities of cowhides have been booked.

AMERICAN TRADE

America's trade with China was as follows:

	December 1921	Last quarter 1921
Exports to China	G.$7,300,000.00	G.$23,600,000.00
Imports from China	G.$7,400,000.00	G.$21,500,000.00

Japan's foreign trade was as follows:

	January 1922	December 1921
Exports	Yen 87,160,000 against	Yen 145,514,000
Imports	Yen 176,262,000 against	Yen 160,155,000

Out of which the trade with China was:

	January 1922	December 1921
Exports	Yen 17,273,000 against	Yen 21,761,000
Imports	Yen 11,293,000 against	Yen 14,820,000

SILVER AND EXCHANGE

During January Silver in London remained remarkably steady at 35 pence level with ¼ lower for forward. At New York the price of silver advanced 2 cents during the month, opening at 64⅛ and closing at 66⅛.

As the month closed India became a good buyer for ready shipment, because there was ground for the belief that the import duty (which had been abandoned during the past 2 years) of 4 annas per ounce would soon be re-imposed. China was more inclined to sell, especially in view of the fact that the Canton Mint was not in the market.

CANTON'S MINT

We have repeatedly dwelt on the enormous influence which this particular mint is having on the silver market, and our contention will be readily understood if we mention that in course of the past year the mint at Canton has used at least 60 million ounces of silver for the production of 20-cent pieces exclusively. This is about one third of the world's annual silver output.

The price of these 20 cents pieces is quoted by their relation to the Hongkong Dollar. During recent months the rate has fluctuated between 115 and 118. As soon as the price reaches 120, the Canton Mint is supposed to cease coining. Although the whole country has been saturated with Canton currency, the limit has not yet been reached. This can only be ascribed to the fact that the authorities in charge have managed to withdraw the old Dragon 20-cents pieces, replacing them with the new, inferior product.

HANGCHOW TO CHANGE?

Animated by the success—or rather by the profit—achieved by the Canton Mint, the authorities in charge of the Provincial Mint at Hangchow (Chekiang) have decided to transfer activities from the "big dollar" to the small coin dollar, and to prohibit the entry of the Canton currency into Chekiang province.

Regarding movements of bar silver in January 1922 we can record the following figures:

Shipments to Shanghai:
From London	£205,000 in value
From San Francisco	G.$ 1,600,800 in value
From San Francisco	G.$ 1,054,000 in value to Hongkong
Arrivals of Bar Silver in Shanghai:
From London	2,409 bars
From America	3,607 bars
Total	6,016 bars
Shipment of bar silver from Shanghai:
To the Mint at Canton	1,449 bars

CHINA COTTON INDUSTRY

There has been a heavy drop of cotton prices at New York, quotations being: 15.90 on Jan. 30 against 18.50 on Dec. 30 (May delivery); 16.45 on Jan. 30 against 19.45 on Dec. 30 (spot delivery).

Indian Cotton (fully good Bengal) was quoted at 311 Rupees at the end of January, which compared favorably with China cotton prices. (About Tls. 29 a picul of Indian against Tls. 33 for the Tungchow variety.) In consequence thereof China mills bought large quantities of Indian cotton, a fact which is likely to weaken exchange rates here.

COTTON STOCKS

The stock of raw cotton at the end of January was estimated at:
1,000,000 bales at Bombay.
1,100,000 bales at Liverpool.
1,200,000 bales at American ports.
1,700,000 bales at American interior towns.

In our report for the month of September, 1921, we have given statistical figures relating to the cotton industry in China. In view of the great importance of the subject we deem it justified to append hereto further statistical material, showing China's position of the cotton industry at the end of 1921. The figures are taken from tables compiled by the Chinese Cotton Mills Association and will undoubtedly prove of interest.

These tables show that there are altogether 109 cotton spinning mills operating in China. The amount of spindles in operation and in course of installation is 2,915,262 and of looms 13,631.

A Great Crisis At Hand

THE advance of the Chita Army east along the Amur railroad against the Reactionary Forces (the White Army) of the Merkulov Government, which commenced an offensive during the latter months of last year, is a matter that calls for the very serious attention of every civilised country in the world. The object lessons to be gained from these repeated offensives and defensives that have taken place during the past four years supply abundant valuable material for mature reflection on matters pertaining to both the Russian people as a whole and to military tactics in particular.

In 1917, the population of Siberia had no earthly idea of what is commonly termed Bolshevism and the potent fact that Moscow dispatched its agents in thousands to the Far East in order to convert the Siberian population over to Bolshevism showed that Moscow considered it had a somewhat rather difficult task to handle, for at that time, Vladivostok and Harbin had become the political centers for the Russian reactionary elements.

It is now unanimously admitted that Moscow would never have succeeded (notwithstanding the fact that Moscow is and always will be the only Mecca for all Russians) had not the activities of certain of the powers participating in Siberian Intervention proved beneficial in creating circumstances that virtually drove the Siberian peasantry into the embrace of the Bolsheviki. This is good history and proofs are abundant in the records of almost all the Intelligence sections of the armies that took part in one of the world's greatest blunders, i.e. Allied Intervention in Siberia.

Away back in 1917, the severe lesson, served to Ataman Semenov's detachment in Manchuria, when a handful of Russian revolutionists headed by a few frontoviki—soldiers who had returned from the front—whose martial spirit had been taught and perfected to a standard never experienced before in Russia, completely defeated the reactionary forces at Olovyannaya, set the key then to what in reality has proved ever since to be the only true note of the Russian population, namely, the note of freedom and the readiness and willingness to defend it and die for it.

Right through the term of Allied Intervention in Siberia and continuing even up to the present moment, this spirit of the Slav has never failed to assert itself and, as generally happens in all similar cases of injustice to a people, the greater the determination to subdue the oppressed and render them amenable to the acceptance of the principles of the old regime, the greater the Slav spirit exhibited its high degree of spontaneous enthusiasm for the general cause.

For four long years the Russian Far East has been the arena of continued fratricidal strife which, when conducted without any outside interference, is bad enough, but, when fanned by a third party for specific objects, forms one of the most unpardonable sins known to mankind. The Siberian peasantry represents the product of the Imperial scheme of immigration from Russia Proper as a result of a deliberate policy framed years long ago in St. Petersburg by the Muscovite rulers of the old regime. Thousands and thousands of these unfortunate Russian peasants and their families were simply dumped down at points along the railroad track and allowed to shift for themselves as best they could—all for the sake of Russia's scheme of expansion in the Far East. The result is that what formerly represented a wild, uninhabited and trackless territory suddenly became converted into a country boasting of cities, villages, roads, ports, harbors, etc., and lastly, but not leastly, the great railroad connecting modern civilisation between the Pacific and the Baltic. These peasants bore the brunt of Russia's conquest of Siberia and today this self-same peasantry is defending with the gun what it some ten years ago would willingly have given up in exchange for being allowed to go home to Russia never to return again to Siberia. This remarkable change in the spirit of a people must undoubtedly be based on something more than an ordinary event.

The reports to hand that the Siberian Army has captured Habarovsk, which was evacuated by the Kappel Forces long before the approach of the former, help to strengthen this contention. Considering the event from the broad view point, it must be admitted that this continued state of civil warfare in Siberia is destined to produce a very baneful effect upon all phases of life there and it likewise precludes the possibility of permitting the contending parties from ever coming to terms. The greatest danger to civilisation menaces the near future if those powers now pandering to the political fanaticism of a handful of Russian reactionaries shall not be advised in time to avert a catastrophy which may easily become as disastrous in its consequences as did the recent Great War.

Those who have followed the history of the Moscow Government since its inception must have observed two outstanding features of its policy: first, it has never made any unprovoked attacks on any other State and second, its Army has succeeded in defeating and driving out of the country every enemy army dispatched against it, as has been amply demonstrated by the long series of disasters that befell the Wrangel, Yudenitch, Denekin, Kolchak and other offensives. Now it is perfectly clear that such successes could never have been achieved by an army that was not either very highly trained and disciplined, or was not inspired by patrotic enthusiasm, justifying the cause, or, better still, did not possess both these attributes. Military experts will doubtless agree that the possession of both these qualities is essential to success, and that they impart stamina to an army, for the highest possible degree of training imaginable cannot and never has alone produced an army of five million men, who, after five years of continuous fighting for a cause, which to them was not only incomprehensible, but, in addition, did not deeply interest them, should have retained any degree of fighting standard at all.

The wonder is that there really remained a drop of enthusiasm in the army for renewed fighting. That such an army, badly equipped, rationed on the lowest possible scale owing to the scarcity of foodstuffs, and officered by men chosen from and appointed by the troops themselves to commanding positions from sheer merit, yet, nevertheless, liable to be dismissed at any moment if found wanting or displaying the slightest signs of incompetency, could ever have maintained its fighting spirit can be attributed exclusively to unlimited enthusiasm for Russia's cause on the part of the entire fighting machine.

Gen. Serisheff, Commander-in-Chief of the army of the Far Eastern Republic, is in personal command of the forces which are now in full movement towards Vladivostok. Readers will notice by the telegrams which we publish today that he is giving the so-called Kappel forces no time to rest, is capturing one town after another and also valuable military stores which his enemy has not even time to destroy.

This is the situation which confronts the world today: Are the Japanese who have established the Merkuloff government in Vladivostok in return for vast concessions granted to them by that same government—are these Japanese now to be permitted to oppose by armed force the advance of the Chita army operating in its own territory?

Serisheff is headed for Vladivostok. What is Japan going to do? More important, What are the Powers going to do, if Japan interferes with Serisheff?

DIVORCEES

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

The correspondent who signs himself "Variety," and complained because we print photographs of divorcees, reveals an ignorance of news values that is equaled only by his ignorance of women.

If the task of choosing photographs for publication devolved on him what women would he select? Women are of three classes, unmarried, married, and widows (grass and sod). The first are usually too young to be interesting. The second are interesting, but inexperienced, while the third are both interesting and experienced, which makes them, of all women, the most potentially valuable from a news standpoint.

Here, we will say, is a Mrs. Jones, happily, comfortably married. Very well, would "Variety" have us print a photograph of Mrs. Jones, with a caption saying: "Mrs. Jones overslept herself this morning," or "Mrs. Jones ate too much dinner yesterday and felt stuffy afterward?"

Great news, what!

"Variety" would feel about as stuffy as Mrs. Jones after gazing at a few photographs of that kind, and then would write a letter accusing us of being dull which Heaven forbid.

Divorcees, as a rule, are what you might call high voltage women. The very fact that a woman is a divorcee is prima facie evidence that she has a will of her own, and that she is not a soft, narrow creature who would allow reverence for convention or fear of some male brute to stand in the way of her determination to work out a proper destiny for herself.

Newspaper readers of both sexes like to read about divorcees and look at photographs of them if "Variety" only knew it. Women are interested because they always want to know how the divorcee did it. This does not mean, of course, that all of them are possessed of an immediate desire to do likewise, which, fortunately, is not the case, as the millions and millions of delirously happy married women in the world proves beyond all doubt.

But all married women like to have the facts thus disclosed—that is, the facts as to how the divorcees got away with it—carefully stored away in their mental filing cabinets. It gives them confidence, and even courage.

Suppose, by some magic, "Variety" could sweep from the brain of every married woman in the world all memory and knowledge of divorcees, leaving all of them utterly ignorant of that institution.

By that single act he would set the sex back a thousand years. He would bring about a condition of affairs under which men could once more compel the female of the species to get down on her hands and knees in mines and drag coal cars to the pit mouths, with a halter around her neck, as they did in England even less than a thousand years ago.

So even those women who are happily married, as the overwhelming majority of them are, thank Heaven, like to "keep up," so to speak, on divorcees, to whom they pay constant if unconscious tribute as the torch bearers of all feminine freedom.

Men like to read about divorcees and look at their photographs for the reason, previously stated, that these women, as a rule, are both interesting and experienced—interesting, as proven by the fact that they have been married, and experienced, as proven by their escape from it.

A man likes an experienced woman. Any sap head can make love with good chances of success to a young flapper whose head buzzes with romance and to whom the easiest of sentimental lies are good legal tender.

Divorcees are different. They have what might be called a technique, and along with it a method that is always disconcerting and generally baffling. They know the gold from the dross, and have a way of lifting their eyebrows, ever so imperceptibly, at one's truest and sincerest declarations. And the next day, by questions as adroit as any ever fashioned by cleverest advocate, they manage to wrest from mutuals, one here and one there, certain bits of information which in the aggregate expose those true and sincere assertions as the veriest of repetitions or the clumsiest of falsehoods.

Any man, therefore, looking at a photograph of a beautiful divorcee, knows that he is gazing at the likeness of a woman who is as clever as he is, and perhaps a lot cleverer. For which reason he is interested.

Men are always interested in clever women. That's because men are so egotistical themselves. Every man thinks that only a clever woman is worthy of him or of his attention, and since divorcees are admittedly clever all men are interested in them, and in their photographs.

"Variety" might contend that he, for one, does not subscribe to the statement that all divorcees are admittedly clever. Very well, how is it then that divorcees manage to get their likenesses reproduced in newspapers all over the world, and even on the front pages, thereby passing muster before the stern and critical eyes of news editors, who are not only clever but who are, in addition, infallible judges of women?

Does "Variety" ever see a picture of merely Mrs. Jones, "who ate too much dinner and who felt stuffy afterward" so pictured? And won't he admit that to print such a picture would be the height of stupidity? Admitting that, can he refuse to admit that news editors are clever, and that they know, better than he himself does, what he and his fellow readers want?

However, of all men, none is so open minded as the average news editor, and if "Variety" thinks there are better looking women than the divorcees, let him send along their pictures, with a statement of that conviction, and we will publish them. Or if any man in town is convinced that his wife or sweetheart is better looking, all he has to do is to send in the photos.

But at all costs we must have pictures of good looking women in the paper. Positively!

The most interesting thing in the world is a good looking woman, and "Variety" should bear in mind that the first duty of a news editor is to give his readers news and pictures that are interesting.

Enclosing my card, I am,

NEWS EDITOR.

REGISTRATION OF SERVANTS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS.

Sir: A magnificent individual who boasts that he employs 12 servants and two chauffeurs has written to the press to tell the public that "the majority of Chinese servants are dishonest, unreliable, pertinacious, and prevaricators."

He advocates that "each servant is given a card with his name, photograph, finger prints, and space for names, addresses (date of leaving and reasons for doing so) of past employers."

Let us imagine some of the alarming consequences that will ensue, if the Municipal Authorities are so ill-advised as to meddle with this question.

Some day I may want a house coolie to replace my present excellent factotum—Ping-pong, my No. 1, will bring for my inspection some friend of his—and I shall look at his "Card of Registration." I shall read there that he left "Experto Credite's" employ because "Master no pay my wages ploperli." Lo! what a give-away! The unctuous anonymity which conceals the Magnifico who advocates treating Chinese domestic servants as criminals would be revealed, and I should learn things! Let me say outright to people of his kidney that there are some of us who will not stand for the high and hard-handed methods that he advocates.

If Mr. "Experto Credite" finds the majority of Chinese servants "dishonest, unreliable, pertinacious, and prevaricators" I reply to him with the well known saying "Like Master, like Servant."

Those Europeans who treat their servants considerately, pay them properly and regularly, and regard them as human beings instead of as machines, seldom have any cause to complain.

The Chinese domestic servant, if properly treated and trained, is the best in the world, bar none.

The fact of the matter is—there are numbers of people living in Shanghai who have never had servants to wait upon them until they came to this town, and the quite-unaccustomed-luxury of such ready and willing service as the Chinese give spoils these nouveau riche masters and mistresses. They simply do not know how to treat their unfortunate employees.

They expect the most extraordinary devotion and ability for a few dollars a month that they, in their turn, never would or could give to their own employers.

This petition that several ladies have presented to the Municipal Council is a mistake.

If ladies have not got good servants, perhaps their servants have not got good mistresses? Who knows? I wonder what the servant has to say about it?

It have good servants. I pay my Cook $22 a month, Boy $18, Coolie $13, and Amah $21. In addition, they receive an allowance to cover the cost of their kitchen rice, and I hope they pay for the rest of their daily food out of my Market account, for frankly, Chinese servants are entitled to receive their food Free in a household.

It is one of the meanest traits of the foreigner in China that, in regard to his domestics, he does not bother about the cost or supply of their daily food.

In our own countries, America, England, and France, we know quite well that we are bound to supply our servants (if we have any) with their food.

We also know that here in China every Chinese employer supplies his servants with their food.

The food does not cost very much compared with the foreigner's scale of eating, and I have always found that this little thought for my own Chinese servants means a help to them that is not at all irksome to me.

I do not care a button if the Municipal Council dabbles with this ridiculous "Registration Stunt" because I shall not take any notice of it. If I should want servants in the future I should take care to obtain them through the good offices of humbly placed Chinese friends of mine, and the reason that I am never at a loss to obtain good servants is simply because I have taken trouble to earn for myself a good name amongst the Chinese. Foolish foreigners who ignore what the Chinese have to say about this (or any other question, for that matter) have only themselves to blame for nearly all the ills that befall them in their intercourse with the Chinese.

I like the Chinese, and the Chinese like me.

No servant of mine shall submit to the indignity of having his thumb prints taken at the Police Station, if I can help it.

There have been occasions when a thumb print has somewhat spoiled the harmonious effect of the tomato soup and the virgin purity of the edge of the soup plate, but that is between me and my friend Ping-pong.

I have had soup served to me in Paris, London, and New York, which had thumb prints—and worse things beside.

Chinese servants for me every time—and, to Hades with this proposed Registration outrage.

Yours truly,

V. B. C.

ARE YOU HANDICAPING YOUR CHILDREN?

Perhaps you did not have many educational advantages and you have done pretty well—better than many of the men you know who have had a much better schooling than you had.

Because of this fact you feel that it would be a waste of money to give your children more than an ordinary education.

Well, perhaps you have been successful, but you can look back at many instances where you might have been still more successful if you had been better equipped in an educational sense.

Also you must consider that times have changed since you were young.

People generally are better educated.

Many of the jobs you held while young could not be procured today by a person with as little education as you possessed when you held them.

In all lines of work the person with mind training is sought and is given the preference.

Would you handicap your children throughout their entire lives by starting them out with a poor education?

THE MOVIES IN 1942

A writer in the January Picturegoer Monthly, who prefers to remain anonymous for obvious reasons, "ventures to lift the veil enshrouding the future of the movies." Writing in prophetic vein of twenty years hence he says: "Tomorrow will see two distinct kinds of picture theaters in existence—one presenting food for the masses, the other giving entertainment to a more educated public. Today the situation is as if classic and a novelette were thrust before a bewildered reader. Novelettes are excellent in their place; so are classics. But altogether they do not mix. For years the kinema has been trying to mix them. Tomorrow this mistake will be remedied. The big men of the industry in 1942 will be the authors. When the really big film authors arrive the producer will vanish altogether. The Stevensons and Tennysons and Thackerays of the screen will no more be willing to let the producer 'interpret' their work than they have in literature been willing to let the printer's reader and the publisher's maiden aunt 'improve' on their manuscript."

THE OLDEST GAME IN THE WORLD

When the nigger takes the two little spotted bones and talks to them as he throws, and when some of the boys with the aid of five cubes and a leather box razzle-dazzle to see who will be 'stuck,' they probably little think that the game of dice is the oldest in the world.

In some form or other, dice have existed in every period of history. They are shown on early Egyptian monuments, and some dug up at Thebes recently are exactly similar to those in use today. They are mentioned in laws regulating games played in ancient Greece and Rome and most other countries in Europe.

The invention of dice is attributed to Palamedes, one of the heroes who sailed against Troy, about the year 1244 B.C., but the use of cubes with numbered sides for gambling purposes is probably much earlier.

Frequent passages in the works of ancient writers and numerous representations in marble and paintings show how popular dice-playing was among them.

A Pan-Pacific League Of Nations

Washington, Jan. 20.—With the declaration that the Four-Power Pact will lead to a Pan-Pacific League of Nations and quoting Henry Cabot Lodge in support of such a Pan-Pacific League, Alexander Hume Ford, director of the Pan-Pacific Union, in an address today before the National Council for Limitation of Armaments in Washington, described the Pan-Pacific Union and its work as a practical nucleus for a world league of nations.

"When Senator Lodge announced the Four-Power Pact," Mr. Ford said, "he announced the birth of a Pan-Pacific League of Nations. It seems but right that Senator Lodge should have been selected to make that announcement, for two years ago in the midst of his attack on the League of Nations, he said to me in regard to a Pan-Pacific League:

"'I believe in such a league. I believe that if there is ever to be an effective League of Nations, it will have its beginning in the Pacific where the traditions are traditions of peace. Europe is not the place for the start to be made. The nations of the Pacific can set the example because they have not become accustomed to generations of strife and racial hatreds. They can discuss their differences among themselves because they have not continually fought each other.' For two years Senator Lodge has given tangible evidence of his sympathy for the idea of a Pan-Pacific League by actively supporting appropriations for the Union which is working toward such a league.

"A Pan-Pacific League of Nations," Mr. Ford continued, "is now in the course of construction. Those masterbuilders, President Harding, Secretary Hughes and Senator Lodge, have driven the first piling home and the nations of the Pacific have already begun to gather material for the laying of the foundation and with the help of a hoping world the structure will grow to completion.

"It has been clearly demonstrated in Washington that the countries of the Pacific are learning to trust each other and to deserve to be so trusted. When the time comes, as it will, that the peoples of the Pacific grow in education until they themselves understand and trust each other, then the countries about the greatest of oceans will work together for their joint advancement and there will be no more spheres of influence nor need of them. The one fleet then afloat will give police protection to the whole world. We have seen the dawn of this great era here at the Washington conference and some of us shall live to see its midday glory.

"At the Pan-Pacific Union, gatherings in mid-ocean, as at the Washington conference, the delegates from the Americas, Australasia, China and Japan sit together, save that to these gatherings and in the mid-Pacific is added the delegations from Siam, Siberia, Java and the Philippines, for these deliberations in Hawaii are truly Pan-Pacific. Unofficial and truly democratic they are freed from red tape and may develop new ideas to their hearts' content. Further, the Pan-Pacific conferences, whenever practicable, are limited to a hundred delegates, but each is a leader in his country in his line of thought or action. A hundred men of different races are kept together for weeks in intimate conferences and at the end of two or three weeks, these delegates from every country and race about the great ocean find they are friends and understand each other.

"Peace, War, and Politics are never discussed at the Pan-Pacific gatherings, the object of the conferences being to seek out and unite on work to be done for the advancement of Pacific interests which all men of all races can agree should be done. In this, the Pan-Pacific conferences have been so far splendidly successful. Peace is not discussed because it is the antithesis of war, and there has already been too much protesting. War and peace will not be thought of when all men are working together for their common interests, and to bring about such a condition, the Pan-Pacific Union is organised and is at work.

"The Pan-Pacific Union is now preparing for the first Pan-Pacific Commercial conference, to be held next fall. Later, it hopes to convene a meeting of its honorary heads, an informal conference of the Presidents and Premiers of Pacific governments. President Harding has stated to the Union that it is more than probable that he will visit Hawaii during his term of office as President of the United States. Upon such an occasion, all of the presidents and premiers of Pacific governments will be invited to meet in Honolulu.

"The Commercial Congress will take up the following questions:

1.—Transportation and Port Facilities with a study of trade routes in connection with supplies of raw material and points of accumulation.

2.—Food and Fuel Supplies, including a survey of present supplies, location, quantity, control, new sources of supply, regulation of price, and guarantee of universal availability to all transportation lines of all nations without discrimination.

3.—Cable and Wireless Communication with a survey of present facilities and their control of same and the establishing of lower special rates for the press and time schedule reserved for same.

4.—Banking and Exchange with a discussion as to possibilities of lessening present exchange fluctuations.

5.—Raw Materials with a survey of present conditions as to source and character of supply and their interchange.

6.—Standardisation of Weights, Measures, Coinage and the Protection of Patents and Trademarks.

7.—International Trade.

"Hawaii," Mr. Ford said in conclusion, "is an American territory peopled by men of all races of the Pacific, an almost neutral meeting ground where no race prejudice exists. It is the inter-racial experimental station of the Pacific and here, where China's first president, Sun Yat-sen was born and educated, is being worked out as in a laboratory, plans for a real Pan-Pacific League of Nations that will lighten and illuminate the whole world. To the carrying forward of the ideals expressed at the conference in Washington, the Pan-Pacific Union will bend its energies, guided by its leaders who are the actual heads of the governments of Pacific lands."

The President of the Pan-Pacific Union is the Hon. Wallace R. Farrington, Governor or Hawaii. The honorary presidents are: Warren G. Harding, President of United States; William M. Hughes, Prime Minister, Australia; W. F. Massey, Prime Minister, New Zealand; Hsu Shih-chang, President of China; Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada; Takashi Hara, Prime Minister of Japan, and Rama II, King of Siam.

The National Council for the Limitation of Armaments before which Mr. Ford spoke, is an affiliation of 39 National organisations in the United States working for the abolition of war. It has headquarters opposite the State, War and Navy building in Washing. The Council plans to continue its work after the close of the Conference. Its program for 1922 includes an intensive education compaign, a legislative committee to study measures before Congress from the point of view of their influence for or against war, and the development of an International organisation of Peace societies.

College And School Notes

ST. JOHN'S UNIVERSITY

It is a tradition that at the beginning of each term, President F. L. Hawks Pott gives a motto. This semestor, he submitted an old English saying—"The Utmost for the Light"—to the student body after the morning service on Feb. 7 in the Alumni Hall.

Miss Hayes has been appointed by the board of the American Mission to be the librarian of St. John's Low Library. She is expected to be here within the next week. The book store on the ground floor of the Library has been rearranged for the librarian's office.

During the vacation, more than 50 new English books published in England have been added to the library, most of them of religious text.

A holiday was given on Feb. 11, it being the fifteenth day of the First Moon of the Chinese calendar, or the day of the "lantern festival."

Mr. A. D. Stewart, who is teaching the course in book-keeping and accounting, has been called away to Hankow on business for the Standard Oil Company and will be back in about one month. Mr. C. C. King, an alumus of St. John's, is taking up his class for a month.

Rev. M. H. Throop, Prof. of English Literature, has left on furlough with his family for the United States. Mr. Timothy Ling, M. A., Cambridge, has joined the Faculty and is taking up the classes which were formerly taught by Prof. Throop.

Two new courses, Life Insurance and Salesmanship, are introduced into the Department of Economics and Businss Administration. Mr. H. S. Pau of the Asia Life Insurance Company and Mr. Francis Zia of Shun Pao have been appointed locturers for the respective courses.

A new student, T. I. Zang has been admitted as a special student in the theological class. He comes from First Provincial Agricultural College, Nanking, in which he was the Dean of the Forestry Department.

ST. MARY'S HALL

Work was resumed in the school on February 15, with an enrollment of 270 students, quite a large number of new students were disappointed in their hope of entering St. Mary's Hall this term and ten or so have already paid their registration fee for September.

In the absence of Miss Fullerton, Miss Lucy Gdaves is Acting Principal. Miss Bailey and Miss Hutchinson are also in America for six months, and Mrs. E. A. Ford has joined the staff for the period of their absence.

Mrs. R. M. Chapman is still coming out from Shanghai four mornings each week to assist in the Music Department.

For some time there have been students from Java, Jamaica, N. Borneo and Honolulu. This term some new parts of the world are represented by students from California and Panama.

The present athletic activities of the school include the drill of the folk dances for the May Fete, and Golf.

Smallpox By Vote

In the United States, say J. N. Force, special expert, and Dr. J. P. Leake, of the United States Public Health Service, in a recent Public Health Report, smallpox depends on the popular vote. Study of the smallpox statistics in twenty states for the last six years and of the vaccination laws in the same states indicates that the people have generally obeyed the vaccination laws that they have made. Where popular sentiment has sustained a strong centralised compulsory vaccination act smallpox is today negligible; show curves that are much higher and are very similar to each other, though that of the Central States is about twice as high as that of the Southern States. The three Pacific Coast States show a most extraordinary increase in the disease, the smallpox curve having soared from one nearly as low as that of the Eastern States in 1915 to one eight times as high in 1920.

Within each of these four geographical groups, the better the status of vaccination in the law, the lower is the smallpox rate. The States where vaccination of school children is generally required have little smallpox, averaging 3 cases a year for a community of a hundred thousand inhabitants; the States where there is no such requirement have 116 cases per year for each hundred thousand persons, a rate high enough making it probable that one person out of every thirty would at some time have an attack of smallpox.

GUARD THE BABY AGAINST COLDS.

To guard the baby or young child again colds nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy. These Tablets are a mild laxative which will keep the little one's stomach and bowels working regularly. It is a recognized fact that when the stomach and bowels are in good order colds will not exist: that the health of the little one will be good, and that he will thrive and be happy.

Baby's Own Tablets also cure vomiting, feverishness, indigestion, and expel worms. They make teething easy; are guaranteed to be free from opiates and perfectly harmless.

Chang Tso-lin To Withdraw Troops

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 16.—According to telegrams reaching Peking today it was resolved at the Mukden military conferrence that all the Fengtien troops should be withdrawn inside Shanhaikwan, leaving the responsibility to maintain order beyond Shanhaikwan to the Chihli party.

This result is said to have been reached through the good offices of General Chang Ching-huai and representations made by General Wang Chen-ping, right-hand man of General Wu Pei-fu.

The official reason given for this arrangement is the necessity for General Chang Tso-lin to send considerable Chinese forces to the northern frontier of Manchuria, owing to the fighting between the Red and White Russian forces in Siberia. Chinese predict that General Chang Ching-hua will be appointed Minister of War under the next Premier.

Senate May Adopt Smoot Tariff Plan

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Feb. 19.—It is understood that the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee have practically agreed to the adoption of the Smoot plan for assessing tariff duties on the basis of the foreign value of the imported articles. This involves many increases in duty as the original rates under the Fordney Tariff Bill is calculated upon the American valuation.

Under the Smoot plan the president would be authorised, in an emergency, to proclaim American valuation and increase or decrease the rates within 50 percent of the ad valorem duties fixed in the bill, after formally hearing both sides.

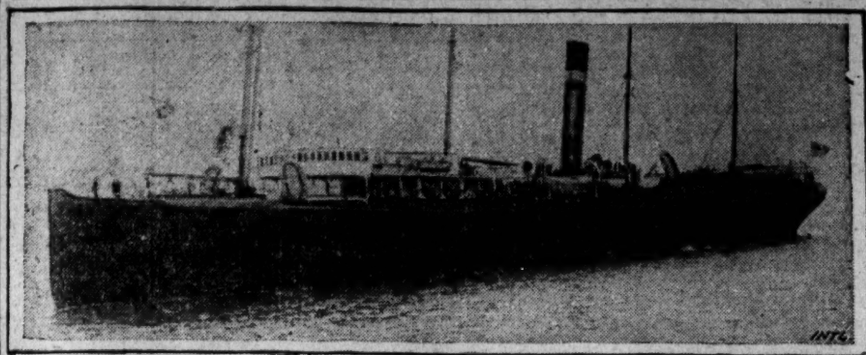
Crippled Transport Arrives Safely In Port



THE United States Army transport Crook, which had been fighting slowly to make port since it sprang several leaks far out at sea five days before its arrival, docked safely at her pier in Brooklyn, N. Y. The rail was lined with cheering doughboys from Coblenz who had been members of the American forces in Germany Many of them are bringing back French or German wives. Nearly 1,000 soldiers were on board The above photograph of the Crook was made upon her arrival in New York. Below, Captain Frank Reppa of the Crook, who kept the boat going and brought her into port under her own power. He was given a hearty cheer by the men aboard, when they were again on terra firma.

French Taxes Four Times As Heavy As Germany's, He Says

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 17.—In the course of a debate in the Chamber of Deputies on recoverable expenditures, Reporter Eymond stated that the State Budget would balance were it not for the fact that the Treasury still advanced large amounts which ought to be paid by Germany under the Peace Treaty.

The advances already aggregated £32,000,000,000 per annum.

Thus the French taxpayers' burden was four times heavier than the Germans,' which, M. Eymond concluded, was sheer injustice.

Weeks Asks Higher Public Debt Limit For Philippines

(China Press Service)

Washington, Feb. 19.—Secretary Weeks has announced that he will recommend to Congress that the plea of the Philippine Government for permission to raise its indebtedness be granted. The Islands are asking that they be allowed to issue bonds to a total of 10 percent on their assessed valuation, the object being the adjustment of financial conditions.

Granted this permission, Secretary Weeks said, the Insular Government would be in a position to adjust financial conditions, the credit of the Islands just now being at a low ebb. An immediate increase in the circulation of the Islands' currency was a prime necessity toward the rehabilitation of business there, the Secretary asserted.

Northcliffe Sees Rosy Outlook For Trade In Far East

(Reuter's Service)

Marseilles, Feb. 19.—Replying to the address of welcome here yesterday Lord Northcliffe futher declared that he was convinced, in spite of the serious Indian, Egyptian and Palestinian problems that the British Empire and the British share of commerce in Far Eastern countries were never relatively in a more hopeful condition.

France was the second colonising Power in the world. She had territories which were models of organisation but some of them were insufficiently known to the British or to the French themselves.

Marseilles, Feb. 19.—Replying to the address of welcome on his arrival from Egypt yesterday, Lord Northcliffe expressed admiration for the French colonisation of Indo-China.

Lord Northcliffe further expressed the opinion that Great Britain was easily first in trade in China and elsewhere in the Far East.

Women Arrested In S. African Strike

(Reuter's Service)

Johannesburg, Feb. 19.—The Chamber of Mines has submitted names for the proposed nominee on the Government's conciliation board to inquire into the strike but the men's federation is declining similar action and has reaffirmed its rejection of the Prime Minister's proposals.

A restricted amount of work is now proceeding in the mines by willing miners. A few of the latter were assaulted by strikers, whose wives led the attacks. Thirteen arrests have been made, including three women.

Peking Teachers To Strike Again

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Feb. 17.—Trouble has again developed in the Ministry of Education and the employees who called off their strike about two weeks ago are again planning to stop work following the news that the Government has not the money to pay them salary arrears which were promised by the Vice-Minister of Education, Mr. Chen.

Their return to work was conditional upon their getting their pay regularly and its nonappearance now has caused the educational officials to plan to strike again.

PAYMENTS ASKED

Peking People's Society To Watch Public Spending

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Feb. 17.—Interest in the financial situation among the Chinese people has become so acute that a society has been formed called the People's Financial Supervision Society. Its immediate program is one of opposition to the $96,000,000 loan, but it intends to investigate all the financial operations of the Government and of the Bank of Communications and the Bank of China.

At the formation meeting yesterday, Mr. Liu announced that its sole purpose was this supervision which must be conducted from a purely disinterested point of view and in the interests of the Chinese people. Several speeches were made dwelling upon the necessity of the society's program and six resolutions were passed.

These resolutions were as follows: (1) To declare that the society was formed in February 15; (2) to issue a manifesto declaring opposition to the $96,000,000 salt surplus loan; (3) to request the Ministry of Finance to make public all the old loans and the dates when they were made; (4) to investigate the "inside story" of the salt surplus loan; (5) to issue a warning to the Chinese Banking Association; (6) to investigate all details concerning the auction by the Ministry of Finance of the Government shares in the Bank of China. Ten delegates were elected to interview the Ministry of Finance and the Banking Association.

Sunday's Concert

BY GERALD ZALSMAN

The Sunday Concert brought us another surprise with the appearance of a lady pianist, Madame S. de S. Pittard, who played one of the most highly favored piano concertos the whole world over, the Concerto in B flat minor by Tschaikowsky.

Madame Pittard, who follows the method of Prof. Leschetizky who died a few years ago in Vienna, plays with great brilliancy and power and remarkable musicality. Her success was very great.

The orchestra played the accompaniment with great serenity and Maestro Paci used every opportunity to make a great climax so that the whole performance made a most striking effect.

In the first part, we listened to the 5th Symphony of the same composer, and although we remember having heard it only once before by our orchestra, the musicians seemed very well acquainted with the music so that we could enjoy every part of it.

The concert, which added fresh laurels to those already garnered by M. Paci and his orchestra, was repeated last night.
